SOX FIGHT FOR THIRD TUSSLE

25,000 "Fans" Turn Out to See First Game of Series to Be Played in Brooklyn

By FRANK G. MENKE.
Sporting Editor International News Service.

Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, Oct. 10.—Wintry winds swept across the field and into the stands this afternoon, chilling the 25,000 "fans" who "sat in" for the third World Series battle between the Dodgers and the Red Sox. The bright sun helped no one but the bleacherites, as the covered stands were backed to its rays.

The bleachers were filled to capacity soon after the gates opened, but the reserved seat holders came late.

They didn't care to risk pneumonia. It was 1:30 before the grandstand began to be peopled to any extent. This was the opener in Brooklyn, but the natives didn't seem wildly enthusiastic about it.

RESERVED SEATS ON SALE.

The double beating suffered by the Dodgers in Boston seemed to have dampened the ardor of Brooklyn fandom. Or, maybe it was because they were frozen, that they were not demonstrative. At any rate, pretty plays in fielding practice and smashing clouts in batting did not provoke much applause.

Reserved seats were on sale at the box offices here almost up to game time. This was a condition unique in World Series history. Never in the last six or eight years have any reserved seats been left for public sale before game time.

The Dodger management announced "All seats sold" a week ago, yet thousands were for sale today. And this condition, by the way, gave the speculators another financial wallop.

Before the "Play ball" sounded at 2 p. m. they were selling their holdings at figures under the market price. The Royal Rooters of Boston, headed by their band, put a little life into the festivities by parading around the field after their entrance at 1:30.

The band played "Tessie" as a matter of custom and then changed out "A Hot Time." The Dodger musicians at once responded with a few stirring tunes.

OVATION FOR RIVAL CLUBS.

The Sox and Dodgers were given only a mild cheer when they trotted onto the field. Both teams promptly set about thawing their frozen joints, and their performances reflected much dash and spirit. Both teams seemed keyed up to the highest point of perfection, and another real ball game was in prospect.

There was much speculation as to whether Everett Scott would be at short for the Red Sox. His left arm was hurt in the tenth inning of yesterday's frolic. He was under treatment of an osteopath this morning and seemed to be in normal condition during practice.

Sidelights on the Series

Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, N. Y., Oct. 10.—So far there has been no great break in the weather in the World's Series. The day opened clear and cool, but not too cool for the players or the comfort of the crowd.

* * *

The Brooklyn fans got up early and out to Ebbets Field, so that the park seats were practically filled by 11:30.

* * *

There seemed to be plenty of tickets on sale in town, so that if the park is filled by the time the game starts it will be something that those who follow the game do not expect.

* * *

President Ebbets put in a double row of box seats on the playing field extending from the right-field corner of the park to the end of the left-field side of the grandstand. These boxes will probably seat about 2,000.

* * *

In addition to this, an improvised bleacher was erected in the left-field corner, which was seated by 2,000 more.

* * *

* * *

Considerable anxiety is felt in the Red Sox camp over the condition of Scott. Scott was injured in getting back to third base and his left arm is giving him considerable trouble.

The dope as far as Coombs is concerned went wrong for he was selected as one of the pitchers to work for the batters during the preliminary practice of the Brooklyn team.

* * *

Ebbets Field was encircled by a string of flags of all nations and combinations, while the inevitable band and singers were on hand.

* * *

At 1:15 the red coated band leading the Brooklyn Rooters made its appearance in centre field, and as far as the crowd in that section could be admitted, the line formed in the march around the field to the station. These rooters come in during the Red Sox practice, Wyckoff being the pitcher.

DETAILED STORY OF GAME

By H. W. LANIGAN.

Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, Oct. 10.—Here is the detailed play-by-play story of today's World's Series game:

FIRST INNING.

RED SOX—Coombs' first ball was over, but Hooper let it go by, and O'Day called "Strike one!"

Colby Jack came back with another fast one, which curved over. Hooper thought it wide, but O'Day called it a strike.

Harry then looked over two bad balls. The Californian met the next one squarely and drove it over the right field fence, the ball curving foul by less than ten feet. The next one was over, and Hooper lined to Wheat.

Janvrin, with one ball on him, grounded to Mowrey, who made a great stop with his gloved hand and followed with a perfect throw to Daubert for the out.

Shorten, making his debut in a World's Series game, took a strike for a starter. Then he let two bad balls go by. The count was raised to two and two when "Chick" fouled one against the stand. Coombs sent up a fast one which Shorten fouled off.

Shorten tried to reach third, but was cut down by ten feet on Stengel's great throw to Mowrey. NO RUNS, TWO HITS, NO ERRORS.

BROOKLYN—Mays put over a strike on Myers and came back with another strike, "Hi" swinging this time. The next one was also, but Myers fouled it off. The next one was low on the inside and struck Myers on the

DENIES SOX SECRETARY DROPPED

It was reported in Boston today that Edwin L. Riley, secretary of the world's champion Red Sox, has been notified by President J. J. Lannin of the Boston club that his services are no longer required.

When interviewed in Brooklyn today Lannin denied that he had discharged Riley.

"I have not seen Eddie for ten days," said Lannin. "As is well known he was stricken while at work in the Red Sox office a week ago Sunday night. If he is through as secretary of the club it is of his own choosing.

"The story which has appeared in a Boston paper, other than the AMERICAN, was never submitted to me. I know nothing about it. Your information is the first I have received. As I said before I have not discharged Riley."

Riley was in town today, but declined to make a statement. He said any explanation would have to come from President Lannin.

Riley was married a few months ago. A few days ago he suffered a collapse at Fenway Park and fell, striking his head. He is still suffering from the injuries he then received.

AMERICAN SCORES BIG "BEAT"

The Boston AMERICAN, like the Red Sox, beats all rivals.

The AMERICAN'S baseball extras yesterday, with the result of the second game in the World's Series, were on the street, distributed around the city and in the hands of readers far ahead of any of the other evening papers.

In some cases the AMERICAN was a half-hour ahead of the other news papers.

One of the most marked cases of getting ahead of competition was in Newspaper Row. The AMERICANS printed at Summer and Devonshire streets, were down in Newspaper Row selling in front of other newspapers' offices ten minutes before the others had their baseball extras out.

At the corner of Boylston and Washington streets, which is one of the busiest newspaper-selling centres of the downtown district, the AMERICAN'S baseball extras, with record of the World's Series game, was selling in full swing without a competitor in sight.

For several minutes any person who wished to buy a paper with the result of the game in it was served by the AMERICAN alone.

The AMERICAN'S newsboys at that corner sold about 3,000 copies of the "Result" extra when another evening paper, only two blocks away, managed to get a batch of late extras on the scene.

By this time, of course, the district had been flooded with AMERICANS—that is, the newsboys were running in the district selling papers right and left, in addition to the scores being sold every moment at the corner in question.

One of the best tests of speed on baseball extras is at the Park street subway, where thousands of people gather, take their homeward cars every workday afternoon and where the demand for papers is rapid and insistent.

This location makes a good test also because it is about equally distant from the different press rooms.

The AMERICAN and those all in Park street yesterday.

The man in charge of distributing the AMERICANS there summed up his report today in the following gleeful statement:

"We beat the field in about ten minutes. Made a wonderful sale."

The same story applies to suburban points. Roxbury, Dorchester, Cambridge, Somerville, Chelsea, Malden, Everett, Revere, Roxbury Crossing and other districts reached their AMERICAN extras, with the result of the game, from ten to thirty minutes ahead of the other newspapers.

In some cases the AMERICAN had extras on the street with the full box score, before the competitors were there with the bare result.

It was another clean-up.

The Boston American will publish extra editions daily showing the progress of the games in detail and at the conclusion of each game will publish a COMPLETE BOX SCORE edition, containing complete detailed stories of everything you will want to know about the contest.

Cavalieri and Bernhardt Safe in New York Port

By International News Service.

New York, Oct. 10.—After dodging through the seas on a strange course to elude German submarines, the Anchor Liner Cameronia and the French Liner Espagne arrived in port today. The Cameronia carried 250 passengers, fifty of them children, and all the way down the coast she hugged the three-mile neutral zone and carried her lifeboats out for any emergency. Captain David Bone and his crew had been on duty for fifty hours and were on the point of exhaustion.

Among the passengers on the Espagne were Sarah Bernhardt, Mme. Cavalieri and Mme. Marta Montessori, educator.

DEMAND OF ALLIES IS DENIED

Warning to American Submarines of New Danger on High Seas in War Against German Raiders

Washington, Oct. 10.—The United States has refused to accept the contention of the entente allies urging that neutrals deny the use of their harbors to all submarines, whether merchantmen or warships. Counsellor Polk of the State Department announced today.

The allied governments, whose warships off the Atlantic coast are hunting for the German submarine cruisers, have warned the United States that any American submarines cruising off the coast must take their chances of being sunk without warning by the allied war craft.

This news was contained in despatches from Washington today. The position of the allies is that they may take pot shots at every submarine they see, on the assumption that such submarines are German.

They say they cannot be expected to make sure a submarine is German and not Americans before sinking it.

What the attitude of the administration will be on this new and startling development is problematical. When Germany created a war zone about Great Britain and gave warning to neutral countries that neutral ships in those waters ran the peril of being sunk without warning, the administration gave notice that the German submarines must make sure of the nature of their prey before striking.

The United States announced that Germany would be held responsible if any mistakes were made by which Americans suffered.

BREACH WOULD FOLLOW.

Therefore it is taken for granted that now, when the allies threaten the possibility of destroying without warning any American submarine venturing out from American harbors, the administration will send the sternest possible warning to the allies as it did to Germany—that such an action on their part would be followed by instant measures on the part of the United States government.

Today's warning by the allies to an altogether new peril from the extension of the U-boat war to these waters.

If an American submarine were sunk it would lead to a breach of relations with the allies, under the policy adopted previously by the administration toward Germany.

A member of the Newport War College today predicted that the German cruiser submarines would next strike off the Fire Island lightship, at the mouth of the Ambrose channel, outside New York Harbor.

"There are two or three other places they might strike," he said. "They might appear off Chesapeake Bay, or they might go to the St. Lawrence region. But the New York station appears most probable."

SEEK LINER'S CREW.

The report that the crew of the Kingstonian had been picked up by a Greek ship was exploded today, and the naval authorities at Newport sent out twelve destroyers, provisioned and with their fuel bunkers filled, to continue the search for that vessel's survivors.

Five miles apart, the destroyers are covering the Atlantic all the way from Montauk Point, Long Island, to Nantucket lightship. The Paulding was the first to get away, and she was rapidly followed by eleven others that raced toward the high seas at top speed, with clouds of black smoke belching from their funnels.

Asked if he thought that the German submarines had started on their voyage to Germany, Rear Admiral Gleaves, U. S. N., replied:

"Your guess is as good as mine."

Some here believe it may be possible that the submarines have taken the Kristonian as a supply ship and a base and are forcing her crew to aid them in navigating her.

While the whole New England coast expected word at any moment today that the German submarines operating off the coast had struck in another quarter, here came from Rotterdam that the German Reichstag will meet again tomorrow to discuss the proposals for "relentless warfare" with the submarine weapon.

FAVOR RELENTLESS WARFARE.

The Rotterdam cables today say that the Reichstag, when it meets tomorrow, would discuss as a principal issue the submarine policy to be adopted.

A majority of the Reichstag members is now believed to favor the policy of sinking everything in sight, regardless.

The Lokal Anzeiger is quoted as authority for this statement, and that paper is usually in close touch with Reichstag affairs.

British warships from the American coast patrol and from Canadian ports are still scouring the Atlantic far out at sea in hope of overtaking the German. The French cruiser Conde is also in the chase.

Although the captain of the Nantucket lightship reported seeing three submarines it is practically certain now that only two were present, the "U-53" and the "U-61." The "U-61" it is believed here may have been acting as a supply ship, as United States naval men reported seeing such a ship hovering near the "U-53."

There has been no confirmation of the wireless reports that nine merchant ships were sunk. United States officials here have come to the opinion that only six were destroyed.

BIG LINER SAFE.

The Atlantic has been combed by wireless during the last forty-eight hours warning incoming and outgoing merchant ships. As a result many of the liners have changed their course from the usual lanes of travel.

Of the big ships caught in the danger zone were the passenger liners Cameronia and Frederick VIII. News was received early in the morning that the latter ship bearing Ambassador and Mrs. Herlard had arrived safely at New York.

As a result of the partial paralysis of traffic and the consequent hold-up of war shipments to the allies, the United States naval officials here believe that England and France may send more warships to reinforce the patrol fleet off the American coast.

WAS ADMIRALTY SHIP.

The Kingstonian of the Leyland line was at first reported as the Kingston and was for years in the Boston service. She was for a time in the Antwerp-Boston service, and later was transferred to the London route.

She made her last trip from Boston on July 16, 1914, when she sailed for London in command of Captain William Kerrigan. Before she could return from London war was declared and she was one of the first steamers requisitioned by the British Admiralty.

Since then she has carried thousands of tons of supplies and ammunition for the British government. Her movements have been kept a secret, but it is believed she was bound to New York for another cargo of munitions when the torpedo from the submarine ended her career.

The steamer was built at Newcastle, England, in 1901, and registered 6,561 tons gross.

RUMOR CRUISER SUNK.

There was a persistent report that one of the British cruisers summoned by wireless to protect the allied shipping had been torpedoed and that all aboard had been lost.

In many quarters the opinion was expressed that the appearance of the U-boat and her consorts, if she has any, would not be surprising. It was reported by members of the crew of the steamer Strathdene that the submarine filled her fuel tanks with oil from the Norwegian tank steamer Christian Knudsen before the latter was sent to the bottom.

Other refugees have declared that they saw a German supply ship hovering in the vicinity of the raid Sunday.

Where next the U-boat will use its view, what target she will next seek, are subjects which naval strategists are guessing at as uncertainly as laymen. The theory that she would lie submerged, ready to strike the British cruisers that were hurried to Nantucket waters, was also advanced.

U. S. WILL RESIST ANY COAST BLOCKADE BY BELLIGERENTS

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN,
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 10.—The United States will not submit to any operations by belligerent warships which would establish even a seeming blockade of American ports.

That decision already has been reached by the administration. It is in consequence of it that Secretary Lansing goes to Shadow Lawn to confer with President Wilson this afternoon.

At that conference a definite policy dealing with Teutonic submarines and allied cruisers will be formulated which it is hoped will go far to keeping the war operations on the other side of the Atlantic.

Admitting that the operations of the German submarine off Nantucket had brought about a general situation fraught with grave dangers, officials professed to believe today that a way out can be found by the administration. All are agreed, by order of the President, who has directed that no officials discuss the possible action of this government.

But very quietly, when alone in their offices or in their clubs, the men who shape the military and naval policies of the nation declare that in connection with the latest developments there is little to choose for this government.

HAVE SEARCHED U. S. SHIPS.

Germany's submarine operations have destroyed ships. But for more than a year, it was pointed out, the enemy cruisers have held up and searched vessels, taken enemy subjects off within sight of American territory and have chased vessels which were on the blacklist far inside of the three-mile limit.

Now with the transfer of submarine activities to this side of the ocean a warning has come from the Anglo-French governments that American submarines ought to remain in port or take the consequences if they are sunk without warning by British or French warships. And with British and French warcraft searching for German submarines, and each side prepared to sink the other on sight, there also is additional danger that a submarine might mistake an American for an enemy and sink it without warning.

It is these complications that officials are discussing, and they point out that there are very real and of such a character that the slightest slip on the part of some naval commander might immediately involve this nation in the war.

Realizing this, officials say that the administration must maintain the position toward all of the belligerents that it outlined when it protested against the Anglo-French naval blockade off the Atlantic coast. At that time Secretary Lansing freely admitted that the British warships were well within their rights under international law. But he said:

OFFENSIVE TO NEUTRALS.

"The grounds for the objection of the government of the United States to the continued presence of belligerent warships in close proximity to American ports are not based upon the illegality of such action, but upon the irritation which it naturally causes to a neutral country.

"The constant and menacing presence of cruisers on the high seas near the ports of a neutral country may be regarded, according to the canons of international courtesy, as a just ground for offence, although it may be strictly legal."

And officials who know the opinions of the President and Secretary Lansing say that this is their present attitude and they look for a way being found to press a similar, although stronger argument home to the belligerents in an effort to protect the Atlantic coast lines from conflicts that must inevitably involve the United States.

Before American naval vessels will take any steps toward safeguarding American neutrality orders to do so must come from Shadow Lawn. Secretary Daniels said. "They had no instructions concerning American neutrality."

Rear Admiral Knight at Newport has reported to the department that he was continuing the search for the crew of the steamer Kingston, although he believed they had been picked up by some outward bound vessel.

"No news of Kingston's crew," Admiral Knight wired. "As weather has been uniformly good I think it probable this crew was picked up by some outward-bound vessel. Destroyers are continuing search."

SAFETY OF AMERICANS AT SEA NOW CHIEF CONCERN OF THE PRESIDENT

Asbury Park, N. J., Oct. 10.—President Wilson, it can be stated, with semi-official sanction, considers the presence and activity of German submarines on this side of the Atlantic a menace only in so far as the safety of American lives is concerned.

Secretary Lansing of the State Department will come here today to confer with the President over the many intricate international questions involved. It is expected as a result of that conference an announcement will be made concerning the status of submersibles entering ports of the United States while the war continues.

The official view of the situation as announced was based on reports telephoned to Shadow Lawn from Washington by Secretary of the Navy Daniels and Secretary Lansing. Both statements gave the commanders of the submarines operating off Newport full credit for having observed the rules of cruiser warfares recently approved by the German Foreign Office.

SHIPS PROPERLY WARNED.

It was announced in a part of the official navy report from Admiral Knight that the vessels attacked and sunk had been properly warned and given time to get their passengers off.

The German Ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, at a conference with Mr. Wilson at Shadow Lawn, was warned, however, that the situation was filled with alarming possibilities which demanded a strict observance of the agreement between the two countries.

Ambassador Barnstorff's reply to President Wilson was not divulged, but when he talked to the newspaper representatives a few minutes later, he said:

"The German government always keeps its promises—everywhere."

Just before receiving the Kaiser's representative, the President authorized the following statement:

"The government will, of course, first inform itself of all the facts that there must be no mistake or doubt so far as they are concerned, and the country may rest assured that the German government will be held to complete fulfillment of its promises to the government of the United States. I have no right to question their willingness to fulfill them."

ADVANCE INFORMATION?

Ambassador von Bernstorff talked with Mr. Wilson less than twenty minutes. He came here to fill an appointment made a week ago for the purpose of delivering the Kaiser's reply on the Polish relief question recently sent to all rulers in Europe by this government.

The presence of German submarines in American waters is understood not to have been mentioned until Mr. Wilson asked directly if the ambassador knew in advance if the submarines were coming and anything of their future plans.

Later the German diplomat answered a similar question for correspondents:

"I'll say know as much about it as I do," he said. "The first information I had of the German submarines being over here came from your American newspapers."

SURVIVORS TELL OF RAID

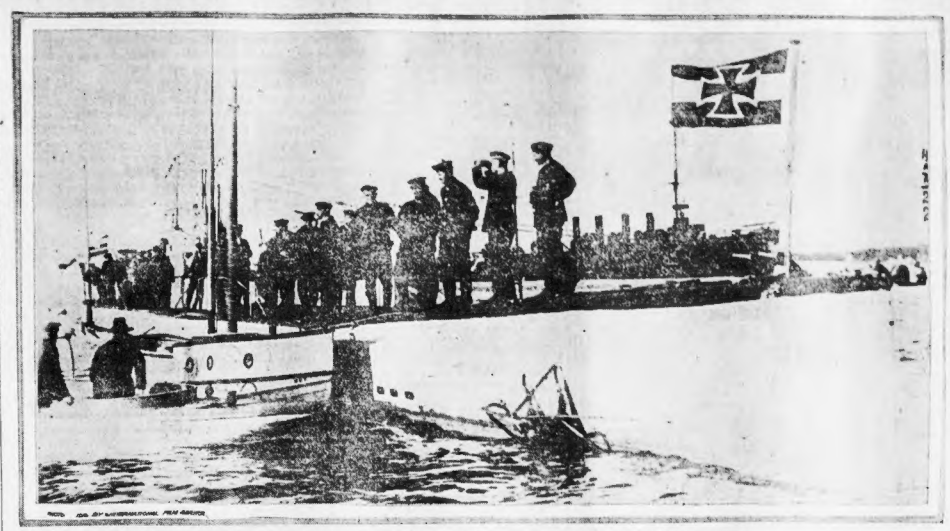
GERMAN SUBSEA RAIDER AND SOME OF HER VICTIMS



The U-53 in Newport harbor just before she started on her errand of destruction off Nantucket lightship. U. S. warship is seen in the background.

Newport, R. I., Oct. 10.—Stories of the survivors of the ships sunk by the German submarine U-53 off Nantucket Shoals lightship are the most interesting features of the bringing of the European war to America's shores. The absence of all semblance of panic on the Stephano, the only vessel of those sunk by the submarine which carried passengers, is the outstanding feature of the sinking of that ship.

The seamen on the various vessels take their experience philosophically. Some of them have been in similar predicaments before, and it seems to be all in the day's work with them. To the passengers of the Stephano, however, the experience was one that they will all remember, and that they do not become tired of telling. The nearest approach to tear was the feeling of the mothers of the children, many of them babes in arms, in getting the little ones into the life boats in safety and caring for them until they reached land.

On the forward deck of the destroyer Ericsson as she swung into her dock was one of the strangest groups ever seen on an American warship. A little band of women, with babies in their arms, sat there silently, trying not to show their sorrow over the loss of precious possessions and soothing the children, frightened by their strange surroundings.

BABY WEARS SAILOR'S CAP.

One blond-haired baby wore a sailor's cap rakishly over one eye. In her haste to leave the Stephano, the mother had not had time to get the baby's bonnet, and a seaman had furnished the necessary head covering from his own.

"I was moving, and lost all our furniture, but I am happy, as I saved the best of all, my children," said Mrs. M. Gushie of Avondale, N. F., who was rescued with her two children, Marie, aged three, and Catherine, ten months-old, from the Stephano. Her husband had gone to Brooklyn, and his wife was coming with the household goods to make a new home.

"My first thought when I heard that we were fired on was for the babies," she said. "I was at dinner and I rushed to get my little ones in the stateroom and get on a life belt. I didn't wait for anything else. When I got on deck I couldn't realize what had happened. It seemed like a nightmare.

"They led me along to the rail where there was a gangway and I went down it and jumped into a boat. Then they passed down my precious babies to me. It was a dreadful shock to my nerves, the fear that something might happen to them. I didn't breath freely until I stood on the deck of the American destroyer."

FIRST THOUGHT OF BABY.

Mrs. E. Rowe of Trinity, N. F., was on the Stephano with her three-year-old son, Cyril. "My first thought was to save him," she said, "and to protect him from the weather. I hurried to get his outside coat, and then I rushed on deck and put on a life preserver. When I got into the boat they passed my baby to me, and I hugged him tight as we rowed to the destroyer Balch.

"When I got aboard the destroyer I felt all right, for I knew we were safe, he and I. It was an awful experience, the shock, I mean. You cannot understand what it means to think that in a moment you may be thrown into the water with a helpless little one in your arms."

Miss Mary Griffin, of Newfoundland, speaking of her experience, said:

"We heard shots and ran on deck and saw a submarine a short distance away. A United States destroyer was in sight. The submarine fired three shots from one of her deck guns. She appeared not to be trying to hit the Stephano, but the third shot was so close we felt the jar.

"There was a little confusion as the boats were lowered, but officers and crew quieted the excited ones.

GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION.

"There were five boatloads. About thirty women and children were aboard the ship. We were in the small boats about fifteen minutes before being picked up. We didn't hear or see a torpedo fired, but as we steamed away the Stephano seemed to be sinking.

"An English cruiser appeared off shore while we were aboard the Ericsson. She was too far out to make out her name, but the officers told us that there was no question that she was an English cruiser."

With Miss Griffin were the Misses Annie Hickie, Josephine Kane and Birdie Kane, all of Placentia, Newfoundland.

A most graphic description of the sinking of the Stephano was given by Mrs. Charles W. Bostwick of Hudson, N. Y., who, with her husband, a banker, were returning from Newfoundland.

"We feel that we owe our lives to the fact that when the captain of the Stephano first sighted the submarine she signalled by wireless but there were Americans on board," she said. "He continued to do this at intervals until we were ready to take to the boats.

"The U-boat—it was the U-53; I saw her clearly—fired the first shot across the Stephano's bow at eleven minutes to six. The captain, after ordering the wireless operator to send out a warning that there were Americans on board, told us to get ready to take to the boats, and very few of us stopped to collect very much of our luggage.

"The captain said we would have fifteen minutes in which to leave, but within eight minutes after it had fired the first shot the submarine sent another shot, which fell several hundred yards ahead of the ship. There was some confusion and some were frightened, but nothing approaching a panic. All of us got into the boats as quietly as we could and were towed to the Balch, which stood very close, by launches which went around collecting the boats.

"The Balch was present when the firing began, and at one time seemed to stand between us and the submarine. There were three women with me when we started to get into the boats, and at the suggestion of one of them—Miss Florence Jennings was her name—I cut my life preserver in two and gave one-half of it to the third woman. We had a very clear view also of the Kingston, and saw her sink after the submarine had struck her with a torpedo.

"The Stephano went down with the siren blowing. The Germans started it blowing unwittingly. The final shot hit the siren, and then there was a swish and the torpedo struck the side of the Stephano and she sank. She disappeared when the prow sank below the waves, the siren still wailing. The American vessels then came to our assistance. We lost everything but what we had on."

Many of the men had life preservers swung over their shoulders, "souvenirs" of their escape from death. Dozens were dressed in overalls and overcoats, nothing else except their shoes and stockings. Some were in their ship clothes, others wore naval uniforms, several sizes too large for them.

All of them cheerfully admitted that they were "broke." Their hurried departure from the sinking steamer had left little time for the collection of valuables.

GREATLY DISTRESSED.

Captain John H. Gunthelmohr of the Bloomersdijk was greatly distressed over the loss of his ship. He laid great stress on the fact that she was under a neutral nation, but Captain Gunthelmohr refused to say anything of the nature of cargo he carried. He said:

"We were a mile off the Nantucket Shoals lightship when the submarine came near us. She hoisted two warning flags. I understood the significance of them right away. Not to be sure there was no misconception she fired a shot across our bow. I gave orders to abandon the ship and it was no time before we were in the boats.

"Several men from the submarina put off for the Bloomersdijk and placed several bombs on board. It was but a few moments before there were several violent explosions. My ship forked for a moment and then sank. The forty-three members of my crew and myself sought refuge on the destroyer Drayton and were brought to port."

GIVEN NO WARNING.

First Officer H. C. Mitchell of the Stephano, who, with his wife and three-months-old baby, Harold Clifton Mitchell, were among the survivors, said:

"We were given no warning. We were running full speed ahead, when suddenly there was a black shape came to the surface on our lee side and a shot hissed us by about twenty feet. There followed a second and third shot and in ten minutes the boats were cleared. It was not too soon, however, for the U-boat peppered our craft immediately, some of the shots going over, others into the craft and some striking the side. There were thirty-four shots fired. Then came the firing of the torpedo and she was gone in a few minutes.

"If it had not been a clear, calm night the loss of life would have been great. There were many women on the boat and my baby was not the only one aboard."

Jean Kain of Newfoundland, five years old, was probably the happiest survivor. "I was not afraid of the submarine," she said. "I knew there were American ships near us and I saw the American flag and I knew everything would be all right.

"I could not find a life preserver to fit me, but I took one just the same," and the little girl proudly held up a life preserver, a souvenir of an interesting experience.

KEPT OLIVE IN MOUTH.

Miss Hattie Trumbleit of Newfoundland showed the frame of mind of most of the passengers when she said:

"I was dining when the attack came and had just put an olive into my mouth. Things happened in such a rapid manner and there was so much for us to see that it was not until a half-hour later when I was on the destroyer that I realized I still had the olive in my mouth."

The garb worn by Miss Trumbleit consisted of a sailor's blouse, a crepe de chine waist, an underskirt and shoes and stockings.

DUTCH FREIGHTER IGNORES FIRST SIGNAL; SHOT STOPS HER

Providence, Oct. 10.—Captain Herbert Nickerson, Fred Doane, Truman Crowell, J. J. Kelly and Steward Wiljam Akiman of the fishing smack Victor and Ethel of Boston, rammed Saturday morning by the freighter Harry Luckenbach, were on the Nantucket lightship when the German submarine torpedoed the Dutch freighter Bloomersdyk and Red Cross liner Stephano.

Members of the crew say the submarine signaled the Dutch liner to "report." As the merchant of the Dutch liner was leaving the side of the submarine, they say, the Stephano came in sight and the first shot across her bow did not stop her. The submarine crippled her and while United States destroyers were taking off her passengers and crew, finished sinking the Dutch liner.

According to Captain Nickerson, the Victor and Ethel is a Boston-owned craft with the greater part of the crew residents of Boston. The boat was rammed by the tug about 2 o'clock Saturday morning. The tug took the members of the crew from the sinking boat and conveyed them to the Nantucket lightship late Saturday night.

"We heard shots aboard the lightship," said the captain, "and noticed two submarines with a third craft I believe to be a supply ship, standing by. We soon learned the ships were directed at a boat we learned later was the Bloomersdyk. After the first shot the submarine signaled the craft to "come over."

STEPHANO DISABLED.

"A rowboat with members of the crew hove alongside the submarine. They evidently were told the boat was to be sent to the bottom. Before the rowboat had gotten away from the side of the submarine, another shot was fired and it proved to be directed at the Stephano. The shot did not stop the boat and another shot was buried at her, disabling her.

"There were surely a half-dozen destroyers in sight at the time. When the German submarine was satisfied the Stephano thought better of running away, the submarine directed her guns on the Dutchman. Over thirty shots were hurled at her before she went to the bottom. When the boat was finished the gunners turned at the Stephano which had, in the meantime, unloaded her passengers and crew.

"A little later the submarine or another one, towed the West Point within hailing distance of the lightship so the crew could get to safety. Members of the crew told me they were towed fifteen miles.

"It was the greatest experience of my life. As fast as the passengers and crews were taken from the sinking vessels they were brought to the lightship by United States destroyers. We could see the actions of the submarine and felt satisfied she meant to clean the seas if possible."

Steward Akiman said it was his seventh wreck and the last.

"Our experience on our craft was not a circumstance to what happened after we were placed on the lightship," said Akiman. "While the submarine waited for the crews and passengers to get safe they did not delay any. They wanted to sink the vessels and did not intend to cause any loss of life unless forced to.

"From what survivors told me, the Kingston was torpedoed about thirty-five miles off the lightship. The crew took to small boats."

Kelly and Truman of the crew said the lightship was crowded with survivors and all witnessed the destruction of several of the boats.

"It was possible to hail some of them," said Doane. "It was a sight to see the destroyers manoeuvre about while the submarine directed her shots."

Captain Nickerson, Truman, Kelly Doane and Steward Akiman said they would return at once to Boston, their home.

CAPTAIN TELLS HOW STEPHANO WAS SUNK BY THE U-BOAT

By International News Service.

Newport, R. I., Oct. 10—Before leaving for New York today to make a report to his employers, Bowring & Co., Captain Smith of the Stephano gave a detailed account of the attack on the liner. He said:

"The Stephano was making good time on her trip from Halifax to New York and was about three miles east of the Nantucket lightship and forty-two miles from the mainland when the submarine appeared about a mile away. The weather was clear, but a light haze was beginning to settle with approaching darkness. There was no fog.

"Most of the passengers were at dinner and I was on the bridge. About 6 o'clock the streak of gas flashing toward my boat I could not realize as an attempt would be made to torpedo me. Five minutes later I saw a flash from the gun on the forward deck of the submarine and a shell struck the water not ten feet from our bow. The spray from it splashed upon the bridge.

STOPPED STEAMSHIP.

"I immediately gave orders to stop the ship, knowing that the safety of all on board would only be assured by such action. The submarine had evidently been lying in wait for us in the lee of a large ship I believed to be a steamer. She was half a mile away when the first shot was fired.

"The submarine remained stationary for a few minutes and then fired three more shots in rapid succession. I needed no further warning and gave orders to man the boats. Several of the British Navy destroyers were then in sight and I couldn't realize that such a daring thing was being attempted right under their very noses.

"There was no excitement among the ninety-four passengers and sixty-seven members of the crew. Of course they realized something extraordinary was taking place. Calmly they answered the six life boats, which were lowered and put off. It was not necessary for us to use all the lifeboats and two were left lashed to the sides.

SAW DUTCH SHIP SUNK.

"Fifteen minutes after we received the first warning everybody was off the ship. During this time the submarine was drawing away from us. She went about a mile and a half to the west and through glasses I could make out that she was after another ship. I saw her fire a shot at a vessel (the Bloomersdyk), and a few minutes later saw her sunk by gunfire.

"When the submarine returned to the Stephano we were a good distance away. I saw her disappear under the lee side of the vessel. Shortly after I saw a column of smoke rising up and down the deck. Finally the submarine pulled away and fired a torpedo at the side of the Stephano. Later a torpedo found its mark. There was an internal explosion on board the Stephano and she began to list and sank in seven minutes."

Captain Smith denied a report that he had received warnings that a submarine was attacking allied merchant ships in the vicinity of Nantucket. He this was substantiated by the Stephano passengers, among them R. Hadden, of Brookhaven, Ct. Hannon said:

"Early in the morning I received a wireless from the American freighter Kansan saying the West Point was standing by the S. O. S. I gave the report to the captain, but we had no idea because we were going away from the position indicated in the message. A short while later the exact wording of the S. O. S. was relayed to me. It read: S. O. S. We have been fired on by a submarine. We are getting boats over.

"The call was repeated to me from the wireless station, and many times during the day it was sent up and down the coast."

Knight Tells of Visit of U-Boat

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 10—The following official report from Admiral Knight on the visit of the U-53 at Newport has been given out at the Navy Department:

I have to report that the German submarine U-53 entered this port at 2:15 p. m. today (October 7) flying the German war ensign and the commission pennant and carrying two guns in a conspicuous position.

Upon approaching the anchorage the U-53 signalled the Birmingham, Rear Admiral Gleaves, requesting that a berth be assigned. Rear Admiral Gleaves assigned berth No. 3.

My aide alongside to make the usual inquiries, but with instructions not to go aboard, as no communications had yet been had with the health authorities.

At 3 p. m. the commanding officer of the U-53, Lieutenant Hans Rose, came on shore in a boat furnished by the Birmingham and called on me officially. He was in the uniform of a lieutenant in the German navy, wearing the iron cross, and stated, apparently with pride, that his vessel was a man of war, armed with guns and torpedoes. He stated that he had no object in entering the port except to pay his respects, that he needed no supplies or assistance, and that he proposed to go to sea at 6 o'clock. He stated that he left Wilhelmshafen seventeen days ago, touching at Heligoland.

Shortly after the visit above described, I was called up on the telephone from Boston by the collector of customs, who asked for information as to the sinking of vessels by him. I gave all the particulars, and stated that the vessel was going to sea this afternoon, and that she had undoubtedly been at sea for many days, and could not have had any communication with the shore stances it would not be possible.

I also received a call from the officers to visit the ship. Acting on this suggestion I sent my aide to return the call of the commanding officer of the U-53 and to extend to him the use by aides of the radio apparatus at the Navy Yard, which is very near.

The U-53 got under way at 5:30 and stood out to sea.

The vessel is much larger than our U class, but I have no exact data as to her displacement and length. These figures will doubtless be supplied.

Newport Society Women Organize for Aid Work

Newport, R. I., Oct. 10—Members of the fashionable Summer colony here have taken steps to organize an emergency committee to work in conjunction with the Newport Chapter of the Red Cross Society in case of a renewal of the wholesale sinking of foreign shipping. It was planned to have this committee prepare supplies and equipment for instant use and to list all available automobiles and ambulances and to take other steps to give quick aid in an emergency.

Among those participating in the conference were Mrs. Beekman, wife of Governor Beekman; Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt, Mrs. Ernest Howe, Mrs. Daniel Fearing, Dr. Charles D. Easton and Rev. Roderick Terry.

SUBMARINE RAID RAISES INSURANCE

New York, Oct. 10—Marine insurance rates not only to European but to far eastern ports have been put up from 100 to 500 per cent. as a result of the German submarine raids on mercantile vessels off the coast of Nantucket.

The advance of 500 per cent. was for vessels of belligerents countries bound for English, French and Dutch ports.

The rate on Saturday ranged from ¾ to 1 per cent., the latter being the average. It is now 5 per cent. on ordinary risks. To South America and the British West Indies, where rates had been ¼ to ½ of 1 per cent., the risk jumped to 2 per cent. Cargoes to Greece will pay a 10 per cent. rate, a rise of 300 per cent. As the former figures were 3 to 4 per cent. to Italian ports the rate has only gone up from 4 to 5½ per cent.

To far eastern ports by way of the Suez Canal there has been 100 per cent. advance, the new premium rate being 8 instead of 4 per cent., while to Russian ports by way of the Panama Canal the rate has advanced to 5 per cent. from the former nominal ¼ to ½ per cent.

Never before have the prevailing marine rates to all parts of the world reached so high a figure as at present. The last previous big advance was when "the news of the raider Moewe was brought to this country last February. In some cases the rate then jumped to 5 per cent; but the general advance was only to 3.

Herbert Appleton, president of the American Institute of Marine Underwriters and representing the United States Lloyds, said:

"As a matter of fact, the former rates have generally been too low, and there should have been some advance even if this latest submarine raid had not broken out."

MUNSTERBERG AT WORK FOR PEACE

Dr. Hugo Munsterberg, head of the department of psychology at Harvard, is aiding in a campaign in the United States by Germany to induce President Wilson to officially propose peace to the warring nations of Europe.

This became known today when the British government made public a confidential report on the situation in the United States, written by Dr. Munsterberg to Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, chancellor of the German Empire, and intercepted in the mails by the British authorities.

The report revealed the quiet, anonymous activities being pursued by the German government to secure peace through the intervention of the President.

Dr. Munsterberg, referring to President Wilson, assured the Chancellor that once the President "works himself into the idea of being the arbitrator of the world, he will be fortified by the joy of playing a historic part that he will give himself up to it with his whole soul and without fear."

MUNSTERBERG EXPLAINS.

Dr. Munsterberg today declared that the translation of the letter, as given out in London, "is miserable and misleading."

"Especially everything referring to President Wilson is given unfriendly color by the translator," he said. "For instance, I did not say that he would be intoxicated by joy, but said that he would be inspired; nor did I speak of pushing him into a pose.

"Anyhow, it is evident that the essential point of my confidential letter is the same as that brought out in a signed article by me in July, namely, that President Wilson would be the ideal mediator between Germany and England, and that the Germans ought not to be afraid of his pro-British sympathies."

Dr. Munsterberg signs himself "Your Excellency's Most Obedient Servant, Hugo Munsterberg."

In the report he says:

REPORT ON CONDITIONS.

"In the country at large, however the conciliatory and yet sure German policy toward Washington, above all, worked excellently. How far the ultimate goal of this great movement, European peace, has thereby been immediately affected and brought nearer cannot yet be estimated even in the most intimate circle. On this point I have confidential information from the best informed circles, which is, however, partly contradictory.

"I have the impression that Wilson's desire to play the part of mediator was at first overestimated in German official circles here; he saw clearly how much he might harm himself with many of the most influential people by such efforts. He knew that he could not ignore these persons if he could be certain of success in Europe."

The report ends as follows:

"For all these reasons I hold it now to be my chief task here to encourage the peaceful sentiment, now abroad, and so my main work consists in continuously writing new essays and articles in favor of the preservation of peace and of Wilson's reputation as a mediator; and to peace material it rarely appears without my name. Unfortunately, the peace call which Bryan, etc., are going to issue with a thousand signatures, in reply to the provocation call of the pro-allies, has found its way into the papers too soon, but it will be of powerful assistance; I am canvassing more especially intellectual circles in favor of this call."

Germans Hail Raids In U. S. Waters.

By International News Service.

London, Oct. 10.—The resumption of submarine activity, this time on the American coast, has caused the greatest satisfaction in Germany, says an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Amsterdam today. It adds:

"It is believed that the wholesale destruction of shipping by submarines will end the war before the year is out. It is considered that the German chancellor made a concession to allow submarines to renew their activity on condition that it is confined to American waters. The reason for this is that the United States is unwilling to declare war owing to the presidential election. Submarine enterprises are not to be allowed in the waters of European neutrals."

THREE DIPLOMATS UNDER SAME ROOF

New York, Oct. 10.—The presence of Secretary of State Robert Lansing, Ambassador James W. Count Bernstorff already a guest there, having gone there upon his arrival from Shadow Lawn last night, so far as could be learned the three did not meet in conference.

By International News Service.

Paris, Oct. 10.—There was a severe artillery action south of the Somme River during the night.

REPORT BREMEN IS BOUND TO AFRICA

Copenhagen, Denmark, Oct. 10.—The evening paper of the Norwegian town of Bergen states that, according to communications from a man well known in German naval circles, the German submarine Bremen was not bound for America, but for some East African harbor.

Nashua, N. H., Oct. 10.—When Mrs. Rena B. Hazelton resumed the stand for cross-examination today in her $50,000 alienation suit against Mrs. Bessie M. Mitchell, Mrs. Mitchell's counsel, Jeremiah J. Doyle, questioned Mrs. Hazelton as to the habits of her husband, Oren L. Hazelton.

Q—Didn't your sister-in-law tell you your husband was a villain A.—No.

Q—Did a man come to you one day and say your husband was visiting a woman at a certain place? A.—Yes.

Q—Didn't you order that man out of the house? A.—He said he could do business for me, and I said I had no business for him and told him to get out. I had to be crafty. I didn't want my husband and Mrs. Mitchell to know I was watching them.

Q—Weren't you afraid of your husband when he was drinking? A.—Yes.

CONSULTED SEERESS.

Mrs. Hazelton admitted she had consulted clairvoyants in her marital troubles.

"The first medium," she said, "gave an exact description of you as Mrs. Mitchell's counsel, and declared you a lawyer to be feared."

Mrs. Hazelton told the story of her marital troubles, beginning with her marriage.

"At that time I was employed as a clerk at $65 a month," she said, "and later worked in my father's office. My husband was a salesman and later went into business for himself.

"When a salesman for a department dealer he became acquainted with Mrs. Mitchell while selling her a marker for the grave of her husband, who had just died. My husband and I bought land and erected a home and of our joint savings and held it free and clear. Mrs. Mitchell had become friendly with my husband and myself and came to live with us.

SUSPECTED NOTHING.

"She advanced $12,000 in cash to set my husband up in business, he and I signing notes for the amount and she taking a mortgage on our house. Mrs. Mitchell later worked for my husband in his office.

"I did not suspect there was anything wrong between them until the Fall of 1915. About that time I found that they quarreled occasionally from jealousy. I asked Mrs. Mitchell the cause of the quarrel and she said: 'There is something between your husband and myself that you don't know about.' I thought it was about time I did know it and asked my husband in her presence, but he denied there was anything of the kind.

"The final break came December 7, 1915, between my husband and Mrs. Mitchell and myself. On the night before, which was Monday, I saw him come out of her room. I left him and went to my father's house. On the following Saturday my husband telephoned me to come down to our home, saying that he wanted Mrs. Mitchell to patch up the trouble. I went and she asked me what I would take. I said $50,000.

AGREE TO TAKE $20,000.

"She replied, 'I can pay it and not miss it, but I won't.' She offered me $5,000. I then told her I would take $25,000.

"Finally she agreed to buy me $20,000, the amount of our notes which she held, and $5,000 more, on condition that I would return to my husband and still be as friendly as formerly with her. I accordingly consummated the transaction, which I agreed to, on the following Monday, at my father's office, but did not.

"Some time afterward she left town I employed, without success, detectives to find her."

The witness named four or five men in all whom she hired to do detective work. She said she employed her father and two men to follow her husband on June 2, 1916, with a chauffeur and a man named Brown, who went for the ride, when she learned that Hazelton had left his office. The witness said they followed Hazelton to where Mrs. Mitchell was, but upon objection the court ordered the last statement stricken out.

GERARD ARRIVES; SILENT ON PEACE

By FRANK CHARLTON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

New York, Oct. 10.—Refusing to confirm or deny any reports published about his mission, James W. Gerard, the United States ambassador to Germany, arrived here today on the Scandinavian-American liner Frederick VIII. The ambassador was accompanied by Mrs. Gerard.

"I won't say a word," declared Mr. Gerard emphatically when questioned by reporters. "I refuse to confirm or deny anything."

Mr. Gerard declared emphatically that he would return to Germany, saying:

"I am just as sure that I will go back as I am standing here."

Pressed in particular about the report that he is here to warn the President of Germany's intention to begin a most drastic submarine war, he retorted sharply:

"Well, that didn't come from me, did it?"

This was Mr. Gerard's first vacation since the war broke out. Throughout the two years and more of conflict he has been living in the centre of the European maelstrom.

The Frederick VIII. passed through the new submarine warfare zone off the New England coast without being endangered in any way.

An enthusiastic greeting was given the returning ambassador. A committee headed by Public Service Commissioner Oscar S. Straus went down the bay to meet him. Swarms of reporters surrounded him in the gray dawn as the vessel slid into her moorings at quarantine and later as he was carried up the bay on the police boat Patrol.

SILENT ON WAR ISSUES.

Was he coming with peace proposals from the Kaiser for submission to President Wilson? Was he bearing a message of warning that Germany is to launch a new submarine warfare more ruthless than anything ever known?

These are questions rained upon the diplomat, but to all he was silent.

If, as has been reported, Mr. Gerard was merely coming home for rest and recreation after his arduous labors in the war zone, he got the welcome of a conquering hero.

All the way up the bay the police boat was greeted with roaring sirens and flags that were dipped in salute. Upon landing at the Battery there was another demonstration.

The committee of welcome was composed of eighty-four members appointed by the Mayor. Mayor Mitchel was not present in person, being absent from the city, but New York City was represented officially by Acting Mayor Dowling.

SAW A SUBMARINE.

The committee boarded the liner and an impromptu reception was held upon the deck.

Mrs. Gerard was presented a huge bouquet of American beauty roses to Mrs. Gerard, and made a short speech of welcome. The only representatives of the government present were Dudley Field Malone, collector of the port.

Some of the passengers of the Frederick VIII., who were gathered on the deck, said that a submarine had been sighted from the deck of the liner last Sunday.

While the ceremonies were in progress Mr. Gerard was being felicitated upon his safe return by reporters and others. When informed that he was looking well the diplomat replied:

"Why shouldn't I? It's this bracing New York air. I feel ten years younger after entering the harbor."

"A VERY BIG OFFICE."

Another said "Your hair seems to be a little grayer, Mr. Gerard."

"Well," replied the envoy, "I'm getting older. Besides, I have a very big office and heavy duties to attend to in Berlin."

An American newspaper correspondent who had accompanied Mr. Gerard across on the Frederick VIII. had sent by wireless to his paper a story saying that the real object of the ambassador's visit was to impress President Wilson personally with the seriousness of the situation between German-American relations as a result of submarine activities.

The correspondent also averred that the ambassador brought no peace proposals. Mr. Gerard was told of this story, but refused absolutely to say a word. His only answer was a tightening of the lips.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerard were in the best of spirits and very happy to get home. The ambassador at first refused to "pose for the photographers, but later his wife got him to consent. Mrs. Gerard looked very handsome in a smart navy blue travelling suit, topped by a broad blue velvet hat with a gold band.

WAR SUMMARY

There was hard fighting on the Somme, Russian, Transylvania and Macedonian fronts yesterday, but at no point was any important results reported.

On the Somme, counter attacks by the Germans checked the Franco-British advance. It is perhaps significant that the recent Anglo-French drive was relatively unimportant in its results, advancing on an average only about half a mile, where previous drives have gained as much as two miles.

Whether this means that the German defence is at last stiffening to a point where it can make effective resistance, or whether it means that their great losses in men have temporarily curtailed the allied offensive power, or whether it is merely chance remains to be seen.

The tremendous efforts of the Russians, failing of support by proper artillery fire, continue to result only in the slaughter of the attacking Russian infantry.

At most points on this front both sides agree that the Teutonic allies have now taken the offensive in tentative fashion, apparently feeling for a weak spot in the Russian line.

It would not be surprising to see the battle line here roll back to the east before the snow flies; for the Russians, in spite of their resources in men, are woefully weak in guns just now.

On the whole Transylvanian front the Rumanian army is being rolled back by the Teutonic pressure. There is as yet no indication of an intention to invade Rumania from this side, however.

On the southern Rumanian front the Teutonic allies captured a strong fortified island in the Danube—a point which may prove important in later fighting.

The fighting west of Salonica and south of Monastir continues; the allies still claim successes; but the situation is substantially as it was weeks ago before the timid allied "drive" began. It will be interesting if Greece enters the war to see if that entry releases the allied troops for a northward effort.

UNDER-SEA POLICY IN NOTE ON U-53

New York, Oct. 10.—The letter which Captain-Lieutenant Hans Rose of the U-53 sent to the German ambassador from Newport last Saturday contained brief notes from the German Foreign Office outlining Germany's present attitude on the submarine issue.

This was learned here today from an absolutely trustworthy source in immediate touch with the central powers' embassies.

The U-53 was sent speeding across the Atlantic in a semi-race with the Frederick VIII. for the purpose of imparting to the German ambassador, before Mr. Gerard's arrival here, just where the German government stands on the submarine issue now.

In substance, the International News Service was informed, the message entrusted to the U-boat commander contains exactly what the German Foreign Office asked Ambassador Gerard to report to President Wilson.

It is a resume of the declaration given to the ambassador shortly before he left Berlin by the German Foreign Office, Premier Minister and the Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

Direct cable connection with Count von Bernstorff being impossible, the expedient of the U-boat was chosen. It was imperative for the German ambassador to know accurately the American government's mission, in order to be able to carry out his government's policies.

It was pointed out that it is customary for all governments to inform their diplomatic representatives abroad immediately of all important declarations made to ambassadors of foreign governments and particularly of any change of policy, actual or prospective.

VENIZELANS TO ATTACK BULGARS

By International News Service.

Saloniki, Oct. 10.—Former Premier Venizelos, leader of the revolutionary movement in Greece, arrived here today from Crete with the announcement that the revolutionaries would attack the invading Bulgarians without waiting for action by King Constantine. The ex-premier was accompanied by Admiral Coundouriotis and General Danglis, former chief of staff of the Greek army.

In a speech at the Quay, M. Venizelos said:

"We have on one hand a monarchial regime and a system of corruption in Athens and, on the other hand, a revolution begun to secure the national liberty. This consecrated conflict will bring us to the fulfilment of our aims without the help of Athens."

CROWD ATTACKS LONE POLICEMAN

Patrolman John Coffey of the Field's Corner station encountered a group of young men at the corner of Clayton and Granger streets, today, and told them to "move on."

The young men forthwith and with quiet precision surrounded the officer and set to work to beat him to a pulp.

They all but succeeded. Coffey was badly injured before he succeeded in arresting one of them and getting the man to the station.

An auto patrol full of officers rushed to the neighborhood and the sound of police went through the houses thereabouts, with the result that four young men were arrested. The arrests were made after a fifteen-minute hunt and search.

Those arrested gave the following names: Daniel McSweeney, 22, of Interior street, Roxbury. McSweeney is the man that Officer Coffey succeeded in getting to the station. The other three were John J. Lyon, 23, of Dineen street; Charles Snow, 21 of Washington street, and John Farrell, 22, of Perrin street.

Feel Achy All Over?

To ache all over in damp weather, or after a chill or cold, isn't natural, and often indicates kidney weakness. Uric acid causes many queer aches, pains and disorders of the organs. Well kidneys keep uric acid down. Tired, dizzy, nervous people would do well to try Doan's Kidney Pills. They stimulate the kidneys to activity and so help clear the blood of irritating poisons.

A Boston Woman Says:

Mrs. C. Harrington, 665 E. Fifth St., says: "I suffered greatly from weak kidneys. My back was so sore and stiff that I could hardly get about to do my housework. My head ached and I was so dizzy that I fairly toppled over. After I had taken two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, I felt better, and six boxes cured me."

Lessing Sees Game from Grandstand

By BRUNO LESSING.

It looked very much like rain yesterday, but it didn't rain, and I am very glad because I did not have to stay here another day; not that I have anything against Boston, but my shirts are giving out and I'm tired of restaurant food, and it's hot and muggy, and I'd much rather be home.

I don't think much of the construction of the preceding sentence, but there were two girls in front of me at the ball game and they talked like that and I've been thinking like that ever since. The editor did not seem to like what I wrote about baseball and he telegraphed me not to bother about the technical aspect of the game but to devote myself to the human side of it. So I gave away my press ticket because there's nothing human up there in the press gallery among all those sporting reporters, and I bought a ticket for the grandstand.

Directly in front of me sat a man who was about a yard wide and seven or eight feet tall, and every time anything happened on the ball field he would stand up and obstruct my view. Next to him were two girls. They both had big hats, and I could only glimpse part of their conversation was thoroughly human. It had a wide range, but the best I could get in the way of connected thought was this:

"Fred gave me a gold cigarette case last year," it began, "but you know I don't smoke, so I'm going to have it made into a vanity case. It's got my monogram on it. It's perfectly lovely."

There was no reply to this, but I think it was the second one who next took up the thread of conversation.

"You you know I'm sure it was going to rain, so I wore this old dress I feel terrible in it. I had it most special when I went on my vacation last year, but I got terrible tired of it. Did you see Lillie's new coat? I don't think it is very classy for the money she paid for it. Ain't it terrible the way they're charging for everything?"

The big man suddenly arranged his feet and uttered a wild shout. The two girls looked at each other in delight for a while, then resumed their discourse was broken.

When I became interested in watching the big man's hands, and who presently, I found that I was sitting with him somewhere on a desert island and that he told me that everything on the island was poisonous. It seemed so ridiculous that I woke up. I don't know how much of the gas or the girl's conversation I missed, but I got up and walked down the aisle of the grandstand. Everybody yelled to me to sit down, which I did not consider very courteous, inasmuch as I was trying to get out of the place as fast as I could.

Carrigan Praises Individual Work of the Brooklyn Players in Great Game

By WILLIAM F. (BILL) CARRIGAN,
Manager of the Red Sox.

Brooklyn, Oct. 10.—I find myself at loss for words to adequately describe the thrills I experienced at different moments during the opening game of the World's Series. In all truth and sincerity I find it possible to say that never during my entire career have I seen so wonderful a struggle. In an encasement of the play one I find myself unable to criticise on the part of my players. Never has a better club had the peculiar misfortune to be defeated. Not within my recollection has the fielding and support given a pitcher been better. In fairness to all I must say that every man did his part and did it flawlessly. Thus I had expected of him, Ruth battled as nearly a game as one could ask for. Thomas caught him in flawless style. He coached the big pitcher along consistently, and by his words of wisdom and advice Babe was time after time lifted out of seemingly impossible situations.

And when I say all this I fully appreciate the peculiar merit of the individual work of the Brooklyn players. It looked exceptionally tough for our club more than once. In the pinches "Tommy" spoke calmly to the big fellow. He called for balls which Babe properly delivered and Brooklyn men batted back. I feel more certain than ever now of the ultimate result.

PRAISE FOR SMITH.

One would indeed be doing a great injustice to Smith as a pitcher if I have looked on to some years if he failed to say something regarding the work and ability of Sherrod Smith. Before the start of the game a man, well qualified to talk regarding National Leaguers, told me that Smith was easily the best hurler Robinson had on his staff.

I wasn't prepared to accept this statement, but after watching the fellow go through those fourteen innings I stand ready to admit that he is a hurler of great ability. He was one of the best left handers my club has pushed over on us some time. Had the breaks gone his way there would have been nothing to it but a win for the Robins.

Brooklyn demonstrated an abundance of punch power. Max was during the game. Had they been in position always to take advantage of one or two breaks that went their way the result might have been different. However, I feel sure that had the Red Sox opened up in their critical situations they would have been equal to the task.

The old saying which has to do with the relative value of a team and its substitutes was never better demonstrated than in the fourteenth when I sent Gainer in to pinch hit for Gardner, and McNally to second to pinch run for Hobby. The combination worked like a charm. Deloss caught hold of one of the proverbial home and propelled it through the gathering darkness to left. McNally, racing like mad, tarried third and continued on to home. He beat Wheat's throw quite handily and the ten-inning Worlds Series game in history ended in a two-to-one victory for Brooklyn.

GREAT WORK OF MYERS.

It is my opinion that were it not for Myers, Brooklyn's centre field the game would have ended sooner with us on the big end. He contributed two plays that were worth the closing hits of ordinary men. I have seen no better fielding as I have seen in years. His shoestring catch of Hooper in the fifth inning deserved more than half the strong commendation to a double if not a triple.

Myers was to the ninth that Myers did in the most dangerous. With Janvrin on second and two out and Walker batting, Mamaux's delivery was a ball. Walker's sacrifice and Mamaux's error. Hooper smashed a fly to short centre. Myers turned around and, racing back, literally Myers got it. Janvrin was forced to stop on the base but he wasn't fast enough to beat Myers' perfect peg to Miller. That play alone rendered Brooklyn's victory, though Lively was supremely poised, the best catcher could do was to foul.

Further than that it was Myers who gave Brooklyn their only run and thus helped still more to prolong the game. He caught hold of one of Ruth's speedballs in the first inning and smashed it down between Walker and Janvrin for a single. Before the game Myers made wonderful efforts to steal the run but failed and Myers was credited with a home run.

While on the subject of outfielders and their wonderful work I must not allow the two or three efforts on the part of Myers to overshadow the one and only big brilliant play on the part of Duffy Lewis. With a man on second in the thirteenth inning Sherrod Smith caught hold of one which seemed certain to drop in left centre. Duffy started with the crack and by a superhuman effort was able to practically dive, yet maintain his feet, and get the ball. That catch was fully as great as any ever made in a World's Series where the Red Sox figured.

HOT SHOTS TURNED BACK.

Once again our infield proved its right to be ranked with the great infields in the history of the game. Time after time hot shots went to all sections of our inner works. In practically every instance they were turned back. Larry Gardner had an unfortunate bout but his wonderful stops and throws in ten other innings caused that error to pale into insignificance.

If I never handle another ball team in a World's Series I can sit back and relish on the wonderful game my club played against Brooklyn on October 9, 1916. While, of course, I want to land the series as quickly as possible I could pardon almost any happening that would cost us a ball game during the next day or so. With two games on our side of the ledger I haven't any doubt but what the needed two more will come.

Every time I think of Scott my eyes begin to bulge and I am sure the same holds true of Janvrin. The local boy is surely a wonder for, before one of the greatest crowds that ever witnessed a ball game, he performed stunts that were entirely unexpected. I knew now that my club hasn't suffered the least bit by the unfortunate accident which deprived us of the playing services of Jack Barry.

That pitching problem is still a bothersome one. I've tried both a right hander and a left hander and still have two clever, capable performers left of the same styles. Just which one to use is more or less problematical. Carl Mays and Dutch Leonard are the pair left and from among that twain the third Red Sox hurler must be chosen.

Of course with Leonard working I appreciate that some of Brooklyn's effectiveness is gone. Stengel is forced out of the lineup and neither Daubert or Wheat appear so good as they might appear were a right hander on the hill. It may be Dutch today and then again it may be Mays. If Dutch works I catch and if Carl get in Cady has his second crack at the big game.

I expect Brooklyn to use either Coombs or Cheney.

30 ARRESTS IN CHELSEA STRIKE

Six strikers at the A. G. Walton Shoe Company plant in Chelsea were arrested by Sergeant Hebblewaite and two patrolmen today, at Eden and Heard streets, near the factory, making thirty arrests within twenty-four hours.

Three of the men were charged with unlawfully assembling, and the others with sauntering and loitering. Those arrested on the first charge, all of whom live in Chelsea, were Charles Jankowski of No. 36 Fifth street, Michael Gunbin of No. 77 Pearl street and Hamlet Fabbri of No. 152 Orange street.

In the other group were Joseph Nicholas, James Pattes and John Pattes, all of No. 52 Kneeland street, Boston.

When searched at the police station James Pattes was found to have a loaded revolver in his possession, which additional charge was preferred against him.

There was no trouble between the strikers and the operatives who are taking their places today. The large number of arrests within the last few days is the result of a crusade by the police, conducted with a view of preventing groups of the strikers from congregating about the factory.

3 SISTERS FINED FOR TRIPLE THEFT

Three sisters who married three brothers were in the Waltham District Court today charged with stealing three bushels of apples from three orchards. The three sisters, Mrs. Mary, Amzela and Margaret Martilo of No. 47 Barnes street, East Boston, were each fined $5. H. H. Sawyer of Marshall street, Watertown, telephoned to Watertown police that the women had sacks full of stolen apples, and Patrolmen McNamara and Holmes arrested them.

TRUSS WEARING CONDEMNED

Mere Mechanical Support Does Not Cure—Binding Pressure Declared Harmful.

At best, the truss is only a makeshift—a false prop against a collapsing wall—and cannot be expected to act as more than a mere mechanical support. The binding pressure retards blood circulation, thus robbing the weakened muscles of that which they need most—nourishment.

But science has found a way, and every truss sufferer in the land is invited to make a FREE test right in the privacy of their own home. STUART'S ADHESIF PLAPAO-PAD is unquestionably the most scientific, logical and successful self-treatment for rupture the world has ever known. Soft as velvet—easy to apply—inexpensive. To be used while you work and whilst you sleep. When adhering closely to the body slipping or shifting out of place is impossible, so cannot chafe or pinch. No straps, buckles or springs attached.

Learn how to close the hernial opening as nature intended so the rupture CAN'T come down. Send your name today to Plapao Co., Block 293, St. Louis, Mo., for FREE trial Plapao and the instructive information necessary.—Advertisement.

COMPLETE STORY OF TODAY'S GAME

leg, Chief Umpire O'Day waving him to first.

Daubert hunted the second ball pitched to Maya, and when Carl gave it a little boost the Dodger captain was safe at first. It was much like an error, but officially scored a hit.

Stengel hunted the first ball and Maya fumbled again, but this time recovered in time to make the play at first.

Myers reached third and Daubert taking second.

Mays was ordered to pass Wheat and Thomas stepped to the end of the box in order to handle his wide passes. This gift filled the bases.

Cutshaw met the first ball. Hobby going down for the putout at second, coming up with the ball. An accurate throw to Thomas resulted in Myers' death at the plate, but left the corners crowded.

Mowrey got a ball for a starter, then let a strike glide by. The next one was a little low, making the count two and one. Mowrey fouled off the next one.

The next one was a little on the inside, making the count three and two. The next one was over the plate and with the three bases runners in action, Mowrey stood still and let it go by being waved out by O'Day.

The youngster certainly outwitted the veteran in the crisis. NO RUNS, ONE HIT, NO ERRORS.

SECOND INNING.

RED SOX.—Lewis looked at a ball. O'Day called the next one a strike although Daffy didn't like it. Lewis cracked the next one on a line to Myers.

Coombs' first offering to Gardner was on the outside. The next one was over and Larry sent a long fly to Cutshaw.

Scott connected with the first ball and drove deep to Wheat.

At Fenway Park, Boston, it would have been no trick to score 20 runs. The Indian played the drive perfectly, making the catch at his waist line. NO HITS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

BROOKLYN.—Olson met Mays' first offering, cutting it weakly to Scott and going out at first.

Miller took a strike and then fouled one off. The next one was over and caught the Brooklyn catcher flatfooted. Umpire O'Day waved.

Mays came back with a strike on Coombs. Next came a ball, a low shoot. Jack hit the next one to Scott and was thrown out at first. NO RUNS, NO HITS, NO ERRORS.

HELD UP BY U-BOATS ON WAY TO NEW YORK

New York, Oct. 10.—The Greek steamer Patria reported on arriving here today that she was held up and searched by submarines yesterday, once at 6 o'clock in the morning and again at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The steamship was allowed to proceed unmolested.

The difference in time of the holdups of the Patria would indicate that she encountered two submarines, possibly the U-53 and the U-35.

Gasoline Shortage in Germany.

New York, Oct. 10.—Gasoline has become so scarce in Germany since the war started, said Ambassador Gerard on his return here today, that he is compelled to get his own supply from England or Switzerland.

Berlin taxicabs are not allowed to use gasoline, but they have a good substitute in benzoin.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Attractiveness.

Common garden sage, brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a 50-cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.

This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Advertisement.

HEADACHES

Thousands of men and women suffer from headaches every day, other thousands have them every week or every month, and still others have headaches occasionally, but not as frequently. A doctor is often unable to find the cause of many of these headaches, and in fact in other cases, knowing the cause, he does not know what will remedy it, so it is a case of experiment cure. All he can do is to prescribe the usual pain relievers, which give temporary relief, but the headache returns as usual, and treatment is necessary. A great relief from headaches, no matter what their nature, is to take ask-ex-lets. Ask-ex-lets will be satisfactory in the highest degree. You can obtain them at all druggists in any quantity, 100, 50c worth, 25c. Write for more, ask for A-K Tablets.

SICK-HEADACHES

Sick headache, the most miserable of all sicknesses, loses its terrors when A-K Tablets are taken. When you feel an attack coming on, take two tablets, and if many hours the attack will be warded off. During an attack take one A-K Tablet every two hours. The rest and comfort which follow, can be obtained in no other way.

PREDICT KILLING FROSTS TONIGHT

Winter's cold hand will take its first icy grip of New England tonight, when killing frost is predicted by the weather bureau.

Those who took 'em off yesterday when the summery warmth encouraged them, put 'em on again this morning, when they awoke to find the temperature had dropped to 41 during the night. It was 82 yesterday noon. At 11 o'clock today the temperature was 44.

The bureau predicts fair weather for tonight and Thursday.

FINANCIAL

Further recovery from the low prices resulting from apprehension among traders caused by the German U-boat raid, was made in the New York stock market today, leading stocks showing gains of from one to four points or more.

Though the market improved steadily, it was mostly on buying by big financial interests, the small trader being extremely cautious about getting "long" of stocks while the German U-boat was still a factor.

Mercantile Marine stocks, which sustained big losses over only slightly higher, indicating that traders in those securities are afraid of results should the company permit its boats to resume sailing soon.

The arrival of Ambassador Gerard, who, according to President Sabin of the Guaranty Trust Company, carried peace proposals from Germany, had no immediate effect on the market, but traders are anxiously awaiting the outcome of the conferences between the ambassador and President Wilson.

American Sugar Refining was a feature, this stock advancing 4¾ points to 117¾ on report of continued large earnings by the company. Much attention was attracted to copper stocks when the price of Utah Copper moved up to 95¾, two points higher than yesterday's close. The copper leader, United States Steel advanced 1¼ points.

Other gains at noon included Amer. Can 2¾, Central Leather 2, Gt. Nor. ore subscription rights 1¼, Mexican Petroleum 1¾, Ray Consolidated 1¼, Republic Iron & Steel 1¼, Studebaker 2¼, Lehigh Valley 2¼, Reading 1¾ and Union Pacific 1½.

The Boston market was strong at noon, American Zinc being the feature. The stock advanced 2¼ points on talk of a merger with Granby. Utah Copper also moved up 2 points, when traders learned the company's steamers, being off coastwise trade, would incur no danger from submarines.

Other gains at noon were Old Dominion 2, St. Mary's Mineral 2, Mohawk 1⅜, United Fruit 2¾ and U. S. Smelting 1¼.

"SOLONGLETTY" GIVEN A BIG RECEPTION

By FRED J. McISAAC.

"So Long Letty," at the Shubert, has come out of the West. It is a Pacific coast production, which has been working its way East and landed in Boston at the Shubert for a brief stay before it lights up Broadway and makes folks over there think the subway has exploded again.

Letty was written by Oliver Morosco, the producer, in collaboration with Elmer Harris. The music was turned out by Earl Carroll.

The first thing that strikes you about it is that the authors had some original ideas. It is not a warmed over imitation of a last season's success, nor is it in the style that is known, for want of a better description, as a "Broadway show."

It has brought East the tang of the Pacific coast. It is amusing, unpretentious and raggy as it is, does not smack of Forty-second street, but has a character all its own.

It appears that at a beach outside San Francisco people live in abandoned horse cars, which are used as Summer cottages. They do the same thing at Revere Beach, but there the resemblance ends.

Two young married couples reside in adjoining horse cars, and, becoming dissatisfied with domesticity, propose to "live single" again. Letty, the "Letty" is not a Sunday school play. At the same time it is not very bad. In the case it is not very bad.

Letty is a pretty girl who hands back again.

"So Long Letty" is a piece that requires careful handling and it depends for success upon an extremely clever cast. It will probably take the hook off by itself, put on your goloshes and go home. It is severely the slenderest kind of entertainment. The plot is the merest thread to hang the music, but it certainly is the picture of youth in the first flush of the wild west outfit which performs it.

Begin with Charlotte Greenwood, a personality that is distinctive and unique. Tall as De Wolf Hopper, she has singularly attractive ways, and that work like the limbs of a marionette. She is pretty and magnetic, comical and clever, grotesque and laugh compelling. There isn't anybody in the line-up who can do the goes big as Letty, the slovenly wife.

Walter Catlett, a Pacific coast product, comes to the front when he comes to merriment. His style is very original, and he has a big part. Sammy Barney, as the good housewife, is a plump and amusing person, and Ralph Herz, as the meek husband, is capable and works somewhat like Ernest Truex. While Edwin Nicander, a bathing girl, who is very pretty and wears very little, made a personal appearance and so did Frances Cameron, with a nondescript foreign accent. Dorothy and Madeline Cameron are very unusual dancing team. Most of these names are not known on the road, but they reappear no with an assortment of Broadway favorites.

Needless to say, "So Long Letty" went over like a cyclone.

ORPHEUM THEATRE— Vaudeville of the first water is the order of the bill at the Orpheum Theatre yesterday. Featuring no special act, there are several that stand out. Chief of these is a fantastical novelty, Smith Cohen's Dancing Men. This is a troupe of four men and four midgets whose offering is most engaging. The Empire comedy Four interpolated some with humor. Another feature is the Sicilian Braders, a high class musical offering. The one-act playlet on the bill was furnished by Fred C. Thomas and Comfort in a screaming farce, "Mr. Sippy's Nightmare." Annie Kent song original sense

WALDRON'S CASINO—If laughter acts as a tonic it is worth while to go to Waldron's Casino this week, where Mollie Williams' Own Company is booked. "The Halloween Party" and "Some Sanitarium," the two musical burlesques, are loaded with laugh germs, and every laugh can put over a full dose in a humorous way. Mollie Williams is an admirable mimic and her manner makes her audience convulse in laughter. "The Dance L'Intlement" is performed by Mollie Williams and Frank Fanning.

BOSTON THEATRE—Robert Edeson, the famous legitimate star, and beautiful Jose Collins, supported by an all-star cast in Elmer Blaney Harris' play, "The Light That Failed," Rose Collins, sister of Jose, appears as "Maizie," the girl who loves "Dick." The Boston Theatre Topical Weekly shows current news events. Vaudeville attractions include Quigley and Fitzgerald, Hussey and Nobie, Tom Brown's Five Ching Lo Maids, White and White, and Gilson.

GAIETY THEATRE—George Stone and Etta Pillard in a new musical show, "The Trenches of England," are at the Gaiety this week. Mr. Stone is cast as the rag doll, and Miss Pillard as "Twinkle Toetoe." They are supported by Lee Hickman, James Meehan, Ben Hard, Lloyd Pedrick, Joe Schrode, Teddy Dupont and Margaret Shannon. The story tells of the adventures of "Twinkle Toetoe," as she finds her expectations realized when her rag doll comes to life.

ST. JAMES THEATRE—John F. Conroy and his diving models was the headliner act at the St. James Theatre yesterday. Mr. Conroy is a Boston man, for many years the chief swimming instructor at the Lincoln Baths. A big bill of features, chief of which are Earl and Sunshine, Ethel Mae Hall and Company in their farce comedy playlet, "The Wrong Guy," Barns and Kissen, The feature photoplay was Cleo Madison in a stirring drama, "The Chalice of Sorrow."

MODERN THEATRE—A vivid story of modern conditions among the rural communities of Scotland is portrayed in the photoplay feature by which Virginia plays the star role. The plot concerns the daughter of a poor lawyer who falls in love with a young man and a son of a landed proprietor. The other photoplay shows Blanche Sweet in "The Storm." This tells of the daughter of a college professor whose absorption in learning has led him to neglect the affections of a girl.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE—Baseball fans are enjoying themselves this week at the Grand Opera House. Washington and Dover streets, if the enthusiasm of them counts. Yesterday afternoon the management presented Howell's baseball machine, showing every play made in the World's Series game. The audience went home highly elated that they were able to enjoy the sport and keep in touch with every movement of the players.

"POTASH AND PERLMUTTER" A HIT

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

"A pearl in the dance hall might be a lemon in the kitchen."

"Good will to a merchant means no more than whether he has blond hair or a strong tenor voice."

"When a business man has to consult a lawyer first to find out if a thing is right, make up your mind it is wrong."

"It is better to be a big frog in a little puddle than frogs legs on toast in Wall street."

Such sage epigrams from the lips of honest old Abe Potash, and the equally apt remarks of his partner and more ambitious partner, Mawruss Perlmutter, in the cloak and suit business, form the basis of Montague Glass and Jules Eckert Goodman's Tremont Theatre in waves of laughter last evening. The occasion was the dramatic opening of the house, and was made an event by the attendance of several distinguished theatrical men.

Abe and "Mawruss," who are no strangers to thousands of Bostonians, are this year appearing "in society," and readers of the delightful character stories by Montague Glass will recognize in the play many of the incidents which have appeared in their published adventures.

The play has just a touch of melodrama, quantities of character impersonation and unlimited comedy. The cast is exceptionally large for a comedy, numbering twenty-seven.

One cannot help but be won by the impersonation of Abe by Barney Bernard, who was the originator of the role in the first stories of the adventures of "Potash and Perlmutter."

It was because of Mawruss' desire to get rich quick that he was led to break with his longtime partner and to enter into a Wall street scheme of the sharper B. Gans, well portrayed by Louis Morrel. Abe's common sense appeal that the plan was dishonest availed naught. Later it developed that B. Gans was feathering his own nest, and it was Abe's money that saved Mawruss from jail.

Others in the cast are Ralph Belmont, Lottie Kendall, Grace Fielding, Robert Newman, Jennie Moskowitz, Sweetie Sweeny, Gladys Jessup, William Ely, Carl Hertberg, Dore Rogers and Alice Enders.

COPLEY THEATRE—J. M. Barrie's "Admirable Crichton," with the Jewett players, are at the Copley Theatre for a fortnight and are attractive and worth-while entertainment. Nature is the keynote of the play, and quite a lot of fresh air when the family of English aristocrats become shipwrecked on an isolated island with an efficient and resourceful servant to take care of them.

The first act of the play finds Barrie at his best with a reception given by the eccentric Earl Loam to his servants. The shipwreck occurs and leaves the family with the butler, Admirable Crichton, in a deserted desert land. The audience at the Copley enjoyed immensely last night the sight of an English lord of the upper house and his elegant daughters bowing and scraping before the one-time butler. Nature again asserts herself emphatically when an English ship calls at the island and takes all hands on board and back to London.

The large cast performed the play with sincerity and spirit, but Lionel Glenister stood somewhat above the average with a convincing and artistic rendering of the Crichton. He was well worth hearing and watching.

PARK THEATRE—Heading the program at the Park Theatre, Clara Kimball Young is in a headliner attraction. She is seen in "The Dark Road," a five-act production written especially for her. It is a play in which Miss Young is first a poor artist, later a Red Cross Nurse. Another photoplay on the bill is Tom Moore in "Hilo Grass." Paul Armstrong's story of the race tracks. Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Drew are seen in their comedy "Cupid, Jr." Illustrating Marguerite Gallagher, the Prima Donna Opera Company star with Mr. Williams, A. B. Sloane completes the program with the Selig Tribune.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—A most amusing bizarre program was offered all this house yesterday, consisting of six vaudeville acts and a double bill of pictures.

The vaudeville was headed by The Great Golden Troupe, in their specialty: "Christmas Eve in Moscow." A war travesty, with special scenery. "In the Trenches," and The Six Stylish Steppers. Linton & Lawton, pianologue and patter; Dan Sherman, monologist, and Kelley and Drake in song and dances.

The pictures were Nance O'Neil in an adaptation of "The Iron Woman," and Lenore Ulrich in "The Intrigue."

TREMONT TEMPLE—Every play of the World's Series is reproduced on the electric score board at Tremont Temple at both 1 and 7 o'clock town games. Three experienced baseball players operate the board, and any one with the slightest knowledge of the game can follow the most difficult play without the slightest difficulty. A triple wire service has been installed to provide for any possible emergency.

"STRONGDRAMA AT CASTLE SQUARE

A crowded house last night witnessed the opening production of "The Hour of Temptation" at the Castle Square Theatre, a unique emotional drama of great power, by Lee Morrison.

"The Hour of Temptation" consists of a prologue and three acts, telling a descriptive story of the love and adoration of a beautiful young Southern girl, Claudia Carter, for a clergyman, who woos, wins her and casts her aside and marries another. The play opens in a Virginia village and the scenes shift to Europe, New York and on board a yacht at sea. Heartbroken by her lover's faithlessness, the young girl leaves home and sails for Europe, where she makes her residence.

After fourteen years elapse she comes back to New York and accidentally meets the eighteen-year-old daughter of her clergyman sweetheart. She immediately prepared to carry out a plan of vengeance. The delightful character of the serious situations of the play are relieved by touches of comedy.

Miss Eleanor Montell, an emotional actress of repute, daughter of Eugene Blair, made her debut before Boston audiences in the title role and was enthusiastically received. Her personal beauty added considerable to the appeal of the play. Supporting Miss Montell are William Morris, Charles B. Ross, Roma Lauri, Ella Ross Toubner & Co., rag pictures, and Murphy and Delmar, comedians.

HOWARD ATHENAEUM—Baseball fans got the game complete yesterday at the popular Rodler Electric scoreboard, which shows every play as received by direct wire from the field. The burlesque show known as the "Darlings of Paris" made merry and offered a show of real worth.

Plays That Remain

WILBUR THEATRE—One more week, the ninth, of that delightful musical comedy, "Very Good Eddie" began at the Wilbur Theatre last night and it was to the same old story, only more so, as regards attendance and enthusiasm.

HOLLIS STREET THEATRE—"Rio Grande" began the second and last week of its stay at the Hollis Street Theatre last evening, where another large audience grew most enthusiastic over the stirring scenes of an army post in the far Southwest.

COLONIAL THEATRE—Fun, music and dance again appealed to as many people as the Colonial Theatre would hold when "Ziegfeld Follies" started upon the fourth week of its engagement in Boston last evening. When an entertainment can draw such audiences for so many weeks it proves beyond question what a hold the style of offering has for the local public.

GLOBE THEATRE—In spite of the fact that Clara Kimball Young appeared in a rival picture in another theatre last evening, the Globe was filled with those eager to see her in "The Common Law," which had such a splendid run last week.

WARS UPON SIGNS NEAR THE COMMON

A crusade against the advertising signs on the roofs of Park street buildings has been started by Mrs. James H. Brown of No. 10 Pinckney street, a member of the executive committee of the Boston Common Society.

For some time, through several of its members, the society has opposed the placing of large signs on buildings fronting the Common and has had assurance from a few of the owners of the estates on that street that their wishes would be observed. Now instead of one large advertising sign there are two today.

Mrs. Brown said: "These signs are more than eyesores, they are a disgrace. It is hard to keep the Boston Common from being commercialized. There is nothing beautiful about those signs. They are an unsightly contrast to the green of the Common, which is sacred to us all. Why is it necessary to have such signs spoil our outlook."

A meeting will soon be held to protest against the signs.

FLAG OR RAG?

Mexico is either a nation or a mob—to be estimated and dealt with by the standards of civilization or to be treated as an ungovernable barbarian.

For the first time since the founding of these United States, our citizens have been deserted by their own government, abandoned to persecution, robbed and massacred with impunity.

Every species of shame that can be heaped upon a proud Republic has been inflicted upon us by a people whose de facto head the successor of Washington and Lincoln delights to honor with the consideration due only to political and moral equals.

A weak and vascillating administration persists in the fulfilment of Bryan's fanatic and fantastic ideals of benevolence.

Are we of such cheap and shoddy stuff as to forget the stain upon our flag, the martyrs born in the blood of Americans is precious and priceless, that the stars and stripes spell haven and that the "ground upon which we tread is holy, consecrated?"

How many more Americans must be massacred, how many more women violated, how many more miles of property seized before the strange arithmeticians at Washington will be able to count the game of retribution worth the risk of alienating the support of peace-at-any-price adherents?

Because Woodrow Wilson has failed to establish order in and exact satisfaction from Mexico—because his unspeakable policy of interference and non-intervention is directly responsible for existing conditions along the border, because he has demonstrated incapacity to deal promptly and adequately with any international problem—because he holds cheap what we hold dearest—we oppose his re-election and support the candidacy and the convictions of Charles E. Hughes.

ACCUSE GIRL OF SOMERVILLE ROBBERIES

House thefts in Somerville, which have worried the police for two months on account of the apparent skill and boldness of the robber, was the work of a mere child, twelve-year-old Eleanor MacLeod, according to Chief Kendall of the Somerville force.

The girl will be summoned into the juvenile session of the court Saturday on a charge of entering the home of Mrs. Frank C. Friend at No. 411 Broadway, Winter Hill, with intent to commit larceny.

That is the only charge actually placed against the child by Chief Kendall, but he says that she has admitted to him that she entered four other houses and stole money amounting to nearly $600.

MOTHER ARRESTED.

Eleanor's mother, Mrs. Maude A. MacLeod of No. 29 Partridge avenue, was in Somerville court today on a charge of receiving stolen property. She was held in $1,000 for a continued hearing on Saturday.

The list of the girl's amazing enterprises, as related by Chief Kendall, begins with a theft of $574 on August 15 and ends with her being trapped in the Friend house yesterday afternoon. She made too much noise and was discovered. The child, stimulated possibly by a successful entry and escape yesterday morning, tried to repeat the performance in the afternoon and came to grief. The record runs thus:

$574 IN STOLEN BAG.

August 15, entered house of Mrs. M. L. Ayer, No. 426 Medford street; stole bag containing $574.

September 27, stole purse and $6 from house of Josephine J. Lawler, No. 14 Melvin street.

September 28, stole purse and $1.50 from house of Herbert C. Dawes, No. 8 Walnut road.

October 9 (morning), stole purse and $4.50 from home of Leonard C. Spitney at No. 52 Dartmouth street.

October 9 (afternoon), caught in Mrs. Friend's house on Broadway.

Chief Kendall said that, after the girl had admitted these thefts, she agreed to take him to each house and show him exactly how she entered, secured the money and left. The chief and the child started out and made a round of the five places. She illustrated just how she entered, how she sneaked along hallways and crept into rooms, how she found and took away the purses and money and how she escaped.

SAID SHE FOUND MONEY.

The charge of receiving stolen goods, which caused the arrest of the mother, was based on the first case against the girl. This was the theft of August 15 when she made her biggest haul and secured $574 from the home of Mrs. M. L. Ayer on Medford street.

Eleanor told the police that she gave the money to her thirteen-year-old sister Flora, who took it home to their mother which the explanation that she had found it on a street in Boston. Eleanor said the money had been spent for clothing and furniture.

The mother admitted, Chief Kendall said, that she had received money from Flora, but she declared there was only $350. The mother said she waited a week to see if the loss was advertised and then spent the money.

At the station house, especially after the flimsy pocketbook was found on her, Eleanor became submissive, told the whole story and even went out with the chief and showed just how she committed the thefts.

CRUISER TRAILS BOSTON FRUIT SHIP

Officers of the United Fruit steamship Esparta, which arrived today from Costa Rica, reported that they saw a big British cruiser lying just off the Delaware Capes, that circled the steamer several times, but made no effort to hold her up.

The Esparta is not equipped with wireless and officers and crew knew nothing about the activities of the German U-boats until she reached the waters off Nantucket Shoals lightship early yesterday morning.

There they saw a flotilla of torpedo boat destroyers and two large warships that are believed to have been United States vessels.

Chief Officer Melville was on the bridge of the steamer when the destroyers came into view. He called Captain O'Neil, but no explanation of their presence was learned until hours later when the Esparta picked up a pilot. There were three first cabin passengers on the ship and a large cargo.

BLACKJACK FOUND IN SMALL RUINS

Mountainview, N. H., Oct. 10.—The finding of a blackjack, with spots that look like blood, in the ruins of the small cottage on the shore of Lake Gardner, is one of the new developments of the investigation of the murder of Mrs. Florence Arlene Small.

It is believed that the find will play an important part in the court trial next September and that it is the article with which the fatal blows were struck.

The blackjack was found by a young man from out of town while on a visit to the ruins. Seeing the end of it sticking out of a pile of rubbish on the cellar, he picked it up. It has been turned over to the county officials. The spot will be tested by experts. Frederick L. Small, who is charged with the crime, is said to have owned a blackjack of this kind which he carried with him to help protect himself when alone at the cottage.

Dr. E. W. Hoddson, who has been assisting Medical Referee Dr. Frank H. Horne in performing the autopsy, had not at an early hour today returned from his visit in Boston to confer with Dr. George B. Magrath as to the results of the latter's examination of organs taken from the body of the slain woman. It is believed that the examination will reveal new features of importance.

It has been learned from reliable sources that Small is not worth anywhere near the amount that it was thought, and his bank account has decreased from over $20,000 to a little less than $3,000 in the last year. He has been losing in the stock market to a great extent.

Roxbury Motorman Relates How He Was Benefited by the New Plant Juice.

"You should take Plant Juice," is becoming a catch phrase in Boston, in answer to an interrogation as to the state of one's health. It is heard on the street, in the street cars and theatre lobbies, and wherever people congregate. At present Plant Juice, the new herbal stomach remedy, is one of the most talked of preparations ever placed on the market, and it will give instant, positive relief in almost every case of stomach, liver and kidney trouble and rheumatism, and if continued, the results are permanent. It is Nature's own remedy, composed of medicinal roots, herbs, barks and berries, and does not contain minerals, narcotics or habit-forming drugs.

Boston people are daily calling at the demonstration of this remedy, and giving voluntary testimonials as to its merits, and the benefit they have received. One of the most recent is that of Mr. Neil McInnis, who resides at No. 30 Smith street, Roxbury, is employed by the Boston Street Railway Company as motorman, and has many friends in this city. He stated:

"For 3 years I have been troubled with indigestion and dyspepsia, bad headaches, dizzy spells, my food fermented in my stomach and caused gas, which gave me great pain at times, and I always had a hard hump in the top of my stomach. Rheumatic pains all through my body, could not sleep at night, and in the morning I felt all worn out and unfit for my work. I had no appetite and could never eat any breakfast. I had tried everything in the way of medicine without any benefit, and finally, as a last resort, started to take your Plant Juice. Three bottles of it have made a new man of me, my stomach is in fine condition and I have no more trouble of any kind. Plant Juice has certainly benefited me and I feel very grateful."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Drug Department of the Houghton & Dutton store, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

RANNEY IGNORES WOODS' ATTACK

Fletcher Ranney, chairman of the Boston Licensing Board, declared that the statements of Robert A. Woods, a former member of the board, concerning him, were "not worth answering."

Woods several days ago issued an article called "License in Place of Licensing," in which he told why he lost his position, what the position was, and what has happened since he retired. Speaking of Ranney, Woods said:

"He was for some years a partner of the leading brewers' attorney in Boston; he is on close terms with the 'king of the lobby,' his legal practice has to do principally with accident cases for public service corporations which are often vulnerable to the attack of a combination of machine and liquor interests, and in other ways he is agreeable to those who secured his appointment."

"I've not a word to say about Mr. Woods' charges," said Ranney. "I do not think they are worth answering."

"Are Mr. Woods' charges against you true" he was asked.

"There is not a bit of truth in them," added Ranney. "I'm too busy to notice them."

ATTACK BIG COAL TRUST IN COURT

By International News Service.

Washington, Oct. 10.—Arguments were begun here in the Supreme Court in the case of the Reading and Lehigh Valley anthracite trust. Solicitor-General John W. Davis and G. C. Todd, "trust buster," for the administration, presented the government's case against the coal road. An imposing array of counsel was on hand to defend the Reading and the Lehigh Valley.

Both the government and the coal roads appealed from the decision of the court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, which partially sustained and partially dismissed the trust charges against the roads.

The government officials today sought to show that the Reading Company constitutes a great preponderating power in the anthracite coal trade, and that through the control of subsidiary coal mining railroad and steamship companies the concerns form a combination in restraint of trade.

Under the combination affected by the Reading, the government attorneys argued, corporations aggregating more than half a billion dollars in assets have been gathered together into a single working organization. This combination, they declared, absolutely controls not only the bulk of the anthracite coal mined in the Schuylkill coal fields, but all of the railroad and water transportation by means of which coal can be taken from that field.

The government attorneys outlined the combination of railroads, coal companies and steamship companies under the Reading Company. Both combinations, they asserted, were "built up and maintained by means wrongful and unlawful in themselves."

"Under the leadership of these combinations," said Solicitor-General Davis, 'the price of anthracite coal to the public has been increased out of all proportion to the cost of production."

The wagon in which he was riding on Washington street, Weymouth, was struck by an auto truck owned by the telephone company. Litchfield sued for $25,000.

BUDGET ESTIMATES WANTED EARLY

An order was sent today by Mayor Curley to city department heads notifying them that estimates for next year's budget are to be submitted not later than December 1. In the order he says:

"With the experience of segregation this year the estimates should result in greater economy, and more close approximation of the amounts that can be appropriated, thus overcoming the condition of last year's estimates, which were over $2,000,000 in excess of the tax limit."

SCHOOLGIRL FOUND STRANGLED BY STRAP

New York, Oct. 10.—Strangled to death with the strap that had held her school books, eleven-year-old Bella Bricker was found today in the cellar of a tenement at No. 184 Monroe street.

The little girl had been beaten about the head, apparently before being strangled, and the ribbon that held her hair was dabbled with blood.

Detectives who are investigating the case believe the girl was murdered elsewhere and her body taken to the cellar for concealment.

BEAUTY DOCTOR TELLS SECRET

Detroit Beauty Doctor Gives Simple Recipe to Darken Gray Hair and Promote Its Growth.

Miss Alice Whitney, a well-known beauty doctor of Detroit, Mich., recently gave out the following statement: "Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home, at very little cost, that will darken gray hair, promote its growth and make it soft and glossy. To a half pint of water add 1 oz. of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ oz. of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is also fine to promote the growth of the half, and relieve itching and dandruff."

THE ONE BOOK THAT WILL INVARIABLY HELP YOU TO GAIN SUCCESS IS THE POCKETBOOK

Levinsky and Smith in Feature Arena Go

By RINGSIDE.

There will be an honest-to-goodness world's "serious" at the Armory A. A.'s headquarters at the Arena tonight. Miah Murray & Co. have arranged a show which they believe will prove every bit as interesting as the seven-round tussle which is being staged between the clans of Carrigan and Ebbetts.

"Gunboat" Smith, who represents New York, is down on the cards to meet Battling Levinsky of Philadelphia and other parts, in a twelve-round engagement. As Smith and Levinsky are two of the best bets in the heavyweight ranks, the "fans" should witness plenty of action.

Bill Carrigan does not believe that the whirl between the Red Sox and Dodgers will last seven rounds. He is of the opinion that Duffy Lewis, Harry Hooper or one of his other star joy producers will sneak across a winning wallop in four or five sessions.

GUNBOAT EXPECTS TO WIN.

So It Is with Smith. He is confident in his ability to stop Levinsky. When he is going right, the honorable gunner packs a knockout punch in each hand. A few years back he was rated as the best little "white hope" in captivity. He reached the climax of his gay career when he bested Sam Langford in a twelve-round tussle at the Arena.

Smith then experienced some hard sledding. He went to England and lost to Georges Carpentier on a foul. After that he was so unwise as to sign for another tussle with Langford. Following his usual custom in second engagements, the "Tar Baby" slipped over a knockout, which was scored in the third session.

During the past year Smith has not done much fighting. He has been taking things easy and has regained most of that strength and aggressiveness which once made him a ring terror.

LEVINSKY CLASSY FIGHTER.

Smith recently decided to engage in a "comeback" campaign. It has been a success so far. He has taken part in six fight and has shown to advantage in each of them.

In Levinsky, the noble "Gunboat" may encounter a submersed submarine which may surprise him. Levinsky has already engaged in one battle with the lad with the mighty wallop. It was a ten-round, no-decision affair, and, as usual, when all had been said and done both boxers won, lost and got a draw.

The battling person declares he will prove that he is the better man of the two at the Arena tonight. As he has victories to his credit over a couple of hundred fighters, more or less, some of whom were classed as good performers, he has a good chance to win from Smith.

Too bad Wilbert Robinson and his band will be unable to take in the festivities. They might be able to find that well known punch which friend Damon Runyon says they miss.

Conklin Captains Fordham Eleven

New York, Oct. 10.—Jack Conklin of Ansonia, Ct., was elected captain of the Fordham eleven to fill the post left vacant by Jim Butler's failure to return to college.

Conklin has played end on the Maroon team for three seasons. His brother Paul is a substitute guard and another brother played guard on the 1914 combination. Bill Way, the tackle, was the only other player to receive any votes.

Manager Kenleg has failed to secure a game for Thursday or Saturday of this week to fill the gap caused by the cancellation of the Boston College game, which was scheduled for Columbus Day.

SCALPERS ON JOB BUYING TICKETS FOR 5TH GAME

As yesterday's huge crowd of 41,000 was filing out of Braves Field the fans were accosted by the scalpers, who, with folded bills extended in their two hands, made this little speech, "I'll buy third-game tickets."

By that they meant they were willing to take tickets for the third Boston game, which it is scarcely much better than even money will be played, off the hands of holders of the strips of pasteboards, the management having sold the tickets in three-game lots.

The scalpers plied their trade inside the park, as well as on the outside, under the very noses of the cordon of police and attaches of the Boston club.

Business was not very brisk. When the scalpers lined up a possible customer they first offered $2 for his $3 ticket, then raised their bid to $2.50 and only went to $3, the market price, when forced to.

Friedman Easy Winner.

New York, Oct. 10.—Abe Friedman, former amateur bantamweight champion, easily defeated Young Al Kaiz in ten rounds at the Military A. C. The loser was warned four times for employing foul tactics. Friedman outboxed and outfought his foe all the way.

Healy Scores Knockout.

New York, Oct. 10.—Jim Healy "came back" at the Olympic A. C. and knocked out Steve O'Brien in the second round.

TOM MOORE AROSE FROM HIS GRAVE TOOK HIS VOICE IN HAND AND SANG AS FOLLOWS:

O, believe me, if all those Albanian names
That I raze on so sadly today—
Dobrudin
Novinvkn
Zlotnipa
Bystrayen
Had I sung them of old to my damsels and dames
They'd have slain me and laid me away.

If I ever had tried to make rhymes such as these
In the lilting old songs I had sung:
Karazakolair
Ierghizeri
Kalmukenian
Hogorodnian
Kazanskoblain
They would rise up and tell me: "Tom Moore, you're a cheese.
And we think that you ought to be hung!"

CHALLENGE.

Once upon a time in our scholastic days we attempted to uphold the affirmative end of a debate entitled: "Resolved That War Is a Necessary Evil." We lost the decision. We ain't making any kick against the decision, but the least we should have got was a draw.

But, if anybody calls upon us now to uphold the negative end of a debate entitled: "Resolved That the Peace Accord Is a Necessary Evil," we can go into the ring, bound, gagged and blindfolded, and win the decision even if Sam Gerson is referee.

P. S.—The above, written neat to pure reading matter, is worth a pair of duents, ain't it, Sam?

A-HA! ANOTHER MYSTERY!

"Cut your metal short and come with me," said Skylock Bone as he dripped into our diggins in Hoosit street.

"What's the hurry?" said I, diplomatically trying to stow away the last of the lunch we had copped off Casey's counter that morning. "Have you touched another constituent for another two-bits?"

"Whatsit, you are a saphead," he replied, irritably. "You know I couldn't raise two bits around these corners.

"I have a mysterious case on hand," said Bone, taking a pipeful of my tobacco and grabbing the remaining hot dog.

"Quite mysterious?" he mused, inhaling the hot dog. "Quite mysterious?" he repeated, inhaling a whiff of Turkish alfalfa from his pipe.

Rain was falling in Hoosit street and beating against our windows, and the landlady was beating against the door, hollering for the room rent. It was a bitter night, fingers cased steadily into the grate and heard nothing. He always acted that way when it was his turn to pay the rent.

"Whatsit," he said, when the landlady had ceased to knock, "this is one of the hardest cases I have ever been called upon to tackle. Scotland Yard has been working on it for years, and never could make head or tail of it, although, in some strange fashion the inspectors have become wealthy enough to retire from the service and buy limousines and country estates.

"I wandered into a pub today, inadvertently, as it were, and placed a case note on Jackstraw in the second race at Laurel. Continuing my investigation, I entered a tobacconist's and laid a buck on Gloomy Gus in the third race at Laurel. Not to bother you with unnecessary details, Whatsit, I placed five separate and distinct iron men on five separate and distinct horses in five separate races one separate and distinct afternoon. What would your feeble intellect deduce from this?"

"I deduce," said I, "that the five beans which I handed you this morning to pay the rent have gone beyond recall."

"Whatsit," the great detective mused, reaching for another pipeful of my tobacco, "your puny references to financial affairs has almost disrupted my train of profound thought. I had almost reached the conclusion that there are handbooks, running in Boston."

Sparkling Plays in 2d Tussle

When a play out of the ordinary is made in a baseball game the scorers put a ring around it, so as to comment upon it when writing their story. Here's the plays that drew "rings" in yesterday's wonderful fourteen-inning battle at Braves Field.

Second inning—Gardner's fast recovery of Cutshaw's hot grounder, which bounced off Ruth's bare hand. Larry followed with a perfect throw to Hobby.

* * *

Third inning—The rapid relays of Hooper and Walker, cutting off Smith at third. Myers' smoky hot grounder was cleanly picked up by Scott, who tossed to Janvrin without the loss of a second's time, heading off Daubert. Janvrin, wheeling around, threw swiftly to Hobby, just in time to double up the speedy Myers.

* * *

* * *

Myers' miraculous catch of Hooper's low liner. He made the catch at his shoetops, tumbled to the sod, and though turning a complete somersault, came up with the ball.

* * *

Eighth inning—Ruth's great leaping stop of Johnston's high bounder, ticketed straight through the center field, which came with two out and Miller and Smith speeding towards the plate.

* * *

Ninth inning—Myers' fast and accurate throw to to Miller, after catching Hobby's fly, which resulted in the nab of the speedy Janvrin, who had reached third with none out.

* * *

Tenth inning—Scott's perfect long throw to Hobby, retiring Mowrey, after Mike's hot cut bounded away from Gardner. Everett received the ball cleanly, going through with an assist that was little short of phenomenal.

* * *

Gardner's leaping catch of Miller's vicious liner, which was ticketed for two bases, if not three.

* * *

Mowrey's great play on Scott, who, with two down, overran third, when moving up on Hooper's scratch single up the third-base line. Mowrey had no chance to head off Hooper. The veteran made a bluff to throw to Daubert and thus tricked Scott into overrunning third. A toss to Olson, covering the bag, retired Scott before he could slide back in safety.

Eleventh inning—Gardner's dazzling scooping stop of Johnston's ugly roller and perfect throw to Hobby.

Daubert's running catch of Walsh's foul spiral.

* * *

Thirteenth inning—Lewis' remarkable running capture of Smith's stiffly-hit, low liner to short left. Duffy made the catch at his waist-line, after a stern chase and while stretched out to the limit, while Mowrey was scurrying in from second base with the run that meant the game.

* * *

Scott's lightning assist of Myers.

NEW PLAYS TRIED.

Coach Brickley has started to whip his Boston College team into condition for their second clash of the season, Columbus Day, with New Hampshire State at Alumni Field. A bunch of new plays are being tried out, emphasis being layed on line plunging. The varsity and second teams scrimmaged for about an hour yesterday and put in some of the hardest work Alumni Field has seen this year. Hanlon made a pretty run of fifty yards for a touchdown, and Fitzpatrick did some clever dodging up and down the field.

Monroe Hurt; Lost to Columbia

New York, Oct. 10.—Coach Metcalf gave his Columbia football squad a rest yesterday. Only a few varsity men put on uniforms and passed the ball around, but these didn't include any who had taken part in the Hamilton games.

Henry Monroe, the varsity fullback, was injured in the second half of the Hamilton game. Gus Peterson, the trainer, is trying to get the fullback in shape to play against Vermont, but the chances are that he will be unsuccessful.

Star Bantams Clash.

New York, Oct. 10.—The best bantamweight card of the current boxing season will be presented at the Pioneer Sporting Club tonight. Champion Johnny Ertle will tackle Joe Lynch, the West Side sensation, and Benny Valgar, former amateur champion, will meet Young Marino, the East Side veteran.

'BREAKS WON FOR BOSTON'

Robinson Says Luck Was Against Dodgers in Second Series Game.

By WILBERT ROBINSON, Manager of the Brooklyn Club.

Brooklyn, Oct. 10.—Folks probably expect me to apologize, but they won't squeeze an apology out of me. We lost a tough-luck game by stupid base running, one unfortunate error and terrible breaks in the luck. We should have won that battle a million times.

It was my idea to try something in the second game to cross up the other side, and I think so did. Everybody thought I would pitch Coomba or Cheney, but I decided to start Smith, knowing he was right and figuring to win one of the first two games with a left-hander, believing formerly and knowing now that Carrigan's club is not very good against left-handers.

"How do you feel?" I asked him after he had been working out for a while.

"Good," he replied.

"Then you work," I said.

I never saw anyone look so pleased in his life. He was right to go the distance, as he showed.

The score of that ball game yesterday should have been 1 to 0 in favor of my club.

When I handed in my batting order at the plate before the game, Carrigan got a terrible shock. He had four left-handed batters coming up in a row, and he took Shocton out of the game and stuck in Walker. It wasn't Smith's fault we lost—that is, it wasn't because of poor pitching, but if he had been a better base runner we would have won. He pitched a grand game. We came back home believing we will still come through, because the Boston club did not play great ball. We haven't got the breaks in the two games played so far.

Two plays beat us in the most hard-luck-breaking game ever fought out in a World's Series. The first was in the third inning, when Smith ran the bases with his head down and didn't look at his coucher. He hit one to right field that was tagged for two bags, and he tried to make it three, when if he had held his head up, he would have known enough to stop at second base. That was stupid base running.

MAKE YOUR DOLLAR A GOOD SERVANT

When your dollar does not buy the fullest measure of good merchandise it is not doing its best work for you. The honest dollar's worth of beer is as important as the honest dollar's worth of beef or flour.

When you are buying beer again just remember that you can buy as much Fenway for one dollar as you can buy of ordinary beer for the same amount of money. Buy a case of

Fenway Lager

"The Beer Without a Substitute"

And compare it with other beers you have had. You will recognize the superiority of Fenway in the full, rich body of its CHOICE MALT and the inimitable flavor of its SAAZER HOPS

Don't be deceived into buying beers bottled in cellars under unsanitary conditions. Fenway products are bottled only at the brewery, under U. S. Government supervision.

SUPREME ALE

"The Ale With a Pleasant After Taste"

Is another product that insures your dollar as well as your health and pleasure.

Like all Fenway Brews, it has the CHOICE MALT body and SAAZER HOP flavor.

It is aged in the only ONE-PIECE GLASS-LINED TANKS in America and is bottled only at the brewery.

Sold at leading bars, 5c per glass, and at bottle stores.

OCCASIONALLY, a more heavy, full-powered cigarette than Fatima tastes mighty good. But heavy cigarettes are a little too "oily" and rich to suit most men for long. You are certain to find more comfort in a delicately balanced blend like Fatima. Because Fatimas leave a man feeling keen and fit even after smoking more often than usual. # CLAIMS $17,000 AS CABOT GUIDE

For services rendered the late Louis Cabot, whose $1,000,000 will was contested by his daughter, Mrs. Vernon L. Briggs, former Sheriff William S. Tuttle of Keene, N. H., seeks to recover $20,000 as a guide and companion on fishing and hunting trips for several years before his death.

The suit brought by the former sheriff is filed in the Norfolk Superior Court and is brought jointly against Henry B. Cabot of Brookline and George E. Cabot of Manchester, executors of the will.

The suit is for services alleged to have been rendered the testator from February 1, 1908, to February 1, 1914, for which the sheriff claims $17,666.66.

He further says that in order to serve Mr. Cabot he refused the office of sheriff on April 1, 1911, after holding that position for sixten years, and also gave up his business as proprietor of the summer hotel, Keene Inn.

According to the plaintiff, it was agreed that Mr. Cabot was to remember Mr. Tuttle in his will, and also that for the services given him as guide he was to receive all of the real estate owned by Mr. Cabot at Keene, which comprised many tracts of land.

CLEAN-UP OPENS TEAR-DOWN WEEK

"Tear down week," instituted by the Massachusetts Forestry Association, with headquarters at No. 4 Joy street, has begun throughout the State.

The whole membership of the association of about 3,500 went Monday on what might be termed "a tear."

Wherever sign, placard or lettered tree was found, it was torn down, hacked, nailed or glued to trees the bearing began right there.

The tear down week is not only to be healthy roadsides, wood lots and streets, but also to tear down signs or trees which have been found to be a menace to forests by making a pleasant and convenient hiding place for gypsy and brown-tailed moths.

The Forestry Association also claims that it has spent considerable time each day so many advertisements on trees and posts that the traveler and automobilists must look long before discovering which sign gives directions where to go.

RIFLES SEIZED BY BAYONNE POLICE

By International News Service.

Bayonne, N. J., Oct. 10.—Forty-five rifles and as many swords were seized by the police early today in raiding a hall on Prospect avenue where they had been stored by members of the drilling.

It was feared that the weapons might be used by the 2,000 strikers in the Standard Oil plant here.

Picket lines formed by strikers today prevented 4,000 workers in the Constable Hook section from going to work. Four plants were affected. Strikers barricaded the streets and attacked trucks and threatened violence to those willing to work. The entire Bayonne police force is on duty in the section, while motorcycle police are patrolling the city. The strikers hold that 5,000 Standard Oil workers would walk out tomorrow.

BREAD HIGHEST IN NEW YORK CITY

SUES BROOKLINE MAN FOR ALIMONY

Mrs. Eva L. Brown of Detroit has entered suit in the Norfolk Superior Court against her former husband, Charles H. Brown of Brookline, for $5,000. Mrs. Brown sues to recover $2,000 with interest from September 4, 1915, and $100 as counsel fee, that the circuit Court of Michigan awarded her as alimony.

In her suit she says that she was granted a divorce by the Circuit Court in Detroit, she charged desertion, the court gave her the custody of her infant son, Gordon T. Brown, until he shall attain the age of fourteen years. Mr. Brown agreed to pay his former wife $100 as counsel fee and $2,000 as permanent alimony.

Mrs. Brown charges that her former husband has always refused to pay the money.

The husband in his answer says that the judgment declared upon him is not binding upon him, and with out his knowledge; that the judgment was obtained without service upon him; that the court which rendered the judgment had no jurisdiction over the subject matter; that by the decision of the judgment he was discharged in bankruptcy in the United States District Court in Boston.

MORE AND MORE PRAY FOR SUNDAY

Thousands in Boston will be praying for "Billy" Sunday's success by Sunday next, according to the Rev. Charles L. Page, chairman of prayer meetings of the Sunday campaign.

The enthusiasm in prayer meetings in Somerville and Roxbury continues to increase. These sections are ahead of other sections in the city.

"We'll have 21,000 persons praying for the campaign in another week," asserts Pastor Page. "I just like to feel that the cards every day and see how numbers multiply upon them.

"Everything is up to our expectation. Ministers with their congregations are working very hard. Interest in this will be better and a cleaner city when Billy Sunday gets through with it."

Boys and girls from ten to fourteen are being enrolled by Miss B. Gamlin at the Tremont Temple office.

Mrs. Emma Redding Saunders is singing Billy Sunday hymns at mid-day prayer meetings before special services in the churches. The most popular Sunday hymns are:

"Somebody Cares," "Brighten the Corner," "I Come to the Garden," "I Walk with the King" and "Sweeter as Years Go."

TRACES INCREASED CRIME TO THE WAR

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 10.—Crime is increasing, according to a report of F. Emory Lyon, chairman of the committee on discharged prisoners of the American Prison Association, to the association.

The increase may be traced directly to the influence of the European war, he declared, and that the increase was the overpopulation of practically all the prisons in the country.

"With a dozen nations at each other's throats, desperate men will prey on property at an unprecedented rate, and there be any other result than the lessening of the sacredness of the principle of human life and indifference as to the importance of material values?" he said.

FALL FROM WAGON FATAL TO FARMER

The accident occurred as he was driving to his home. Picking himself up he completed the ride to his farm. There he was taken suddenly ill and died before the doctor could reach him.

The Democratic Platform a Credit to Mr. Mansfield

THE Democratic State Convention has adopted a good program of policies, and there is little doubt that Mr. Frederick W. Mansfield, the Democratic candidate for Governor, will be loyal to its progressive promises.

By this excellent platform the Democratic party recommits itself to the Initiative and Referendum. Thus for almost twenty years, except during that brief and inglorious period when the party organization was in the control of State Street, beginning in 1902 and lasting two or three years, the Democratic party has persistently and loyally advocated the Initiative and Referendum.

In 1902, when State Street took possession of the party machinery, it unceremoniously kicked the Initiative and Referendum out of the convention window, and it was not restored until the prostituted party had ceased its illicit connection with State Street and stood erect once more. The only Governors whom the Democratic party has elected in Massachusetts in nearly a quarter of a century have advocated the Initiative and the Referendum, that great reform first devised in Switzerland, and now being adopted by all progressive States of our American Union.

The Progressive party, ever since it came into existence, has also advocated the Initiative and the Referendum. Ex-President Roosevelt advocates it, and so does President Wilson. For two years, when the Progressive party had Charles Sumner Bird on its ticket as the candidate for Governor, the Democratic and Progressive candidates, who advocated the Initiative and the Referendum, received almost three-quarters of the total vote cast in the State for Governor, while the Republican candidate, who did not advocate it, received scarcely more than a quarter of the vote.

There is an extraordinary fact in the history of the Initiative and the Referendum. It has never been submitted to the people in vain. It has never in all the States where it was put to a vote failed to be approved. It has NEVER ONCE been rejected by the citizens.

"There is a reason," and it is a fundamental reason. The Initiative and the Referendum restore to the citizens their long lost control of their government. Why, then, should they refuse what it is their right and their duty to have?

In thirty-seven Representative districts the question whether the people of Massachusetts want the Initiative and the Referendum will be on the ballot at the coming November election.

In the meantime the Democrats and right-minded people of the State have noted with interest the attempt of a representative of State Street on the Committee on Resolutions to prevent the Democrats from re-affirming their belief in the Initiative and Referendum. It did credit to Candidate Mansfield and to the Democratic party that this wretched attempt to make a ridiculous exhibition of party insincerity and instability was promptly and vigorously frowned down.

If nearly twenty years of advocacy of the Initiative and Referendum and five great victories by Democratic candidates for Governor who advocated it in their platforms does not make it a fixed Democratic principle, then nothing ever can be a fixed Democratic principle.

The truth is that the Initiative and the Referendum are much more fixed in the Democratic party than are any of its opponents.

Secretary Baker Made Public Ownership Pay

BOSTON is always glad to welcome a man like Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War, not only in courtesy to his high and important public office, but also because he is a man of unusual constructive public service.

Mr. Baker was a distinguished lawyer in the great State of Ohio. He was elected Mayor of the City of Cleveland. He is a profound, intelligent, courageous progressive. He believes in the public ownership of the public service corporations. He distinguished his administration by establishing a municipal lighting plant, and watched over its infancy so faithfully that he declined a position in the Cabinet, when it was offered to him at the beginning of the Wilson administration, because he felt a continuing responsibility for his important experiment in public ownership.

Today this public lighting plant, established in Secretary Baker's administration as Mayor, is selling electric lighting to the citizens of Cleveland at three cents a kilowatt hour, and MAKING MONEY FOR THE CITY—while the people of Boston are obliged to pay our PRIVATE monopoly in electric lighting—the Edison Electric Illuminating Company—ten and twelve cents a kilowatt.

Surely, Secretary Baker is an interesting man to the citizens of Boston.

Keep Up Your Summer Habits

By Woods Hutchinson, M. D.

The World's Best Known Writer on Medical Subjects.

THE idea of changing both our habits and our habit with the seasons is very deeply ingrained. For countless ages, as hunters and fishers and nomad herdsmen, we have come out of our holes and dugouts when the sun began to shine warm in Spring, after the black Winter season of bitter cold and darkness and hunger, to dance and feast and swim and live in the sun through the Summer, and then return reluctantly to our Winter dens again.

The change in our habits of life and comfort between Winter and Summer was so radical, so tremendous that our savage forefathers counted two years to our one, a cold year and a warm year, a hungry one and a full one alternating regularly with each other.

Solemn dances and rites, both penitential and rejoicing, celebrated incoming of both the "good" and the "bad" New Years, of which the sole survivals are Lent and "Spring medicines" at the "coming out" season and school opening and Winter flannels at the dressing up again. So just as soon as the first cold, driving wintry rains come in October or November we shiver and say: "Ugh. Winter's coming. Might as well give in to it," and proceed to put on our heavy underwear, get the moth balls out of our overcoat pockets and dress up as abjectly and ferociously as if we were still living on the edge of the glacial ice.

This is all wrong, for man has made himself what he is, not by giving in to the seasons and elements, but by mastering them. Because as shivering savages or half-starved, ghost-ridden and baron-plundered peasants of the Middle Ages we were compelled to conserve our scanty supplies of food and fuel by curling up in our corners and sucking our paws, is no reason whatever why in this age of reason we should crawl into our house-holes and pull the cover over the mouth of the hole in the senseless and cowardly way we do every November.

So long as we are well fed and well clothed cold and cold air will do us no harm whatever. No day in the whole of Winter when the air isn't wholesomer outdoors than indoors, no weather too bad to be out in and enjoy brisk exercise, except pouring rain or slushy snow underfoot.

During the Summer most of us have got into fairly good, rational outdoor habits of life; the thing is to keep them up just as far into the Winter as possible—and then a few weeks longer. Pretty soon with practice we'll be able to carry them clear through to Spring again.

Of course, we must dress a little more warmly, feed ourselves a little more abundantly and richly, particularly meats and fats; shut doors and open windows at the top only and be more careful about keeping our feet dry. But no violent or heavy changes are necessary, either in clothing or habits. Half an inch more on our shoe soles, half a pound more in our underwear and a pound and a half more "body" in our suits are quite sufficient and far healthier as well as more comfortable than inch-thick overcoats and stiff, heavy Winter goods and underwear like a horse blanket. No suit of underwear ever yet invented is one-fourth as "warm" and protective against bad weather as a healthy, well-ventilated, often bathed skin.

Clothing, instead of being thick enough to keep us warm all the time, should be thin enough to let our skins get well cooled, almost chilled, every time we go out of doors in Winter. As a tonic to nerves, circulation, digestion and appetite cold, brisk, wintry air in ten-gallon doses has few equals and no superior.

Take, if possible, as much exercise outdoors in Winter as in Summer, all that the office clock will permit, and you'll have far fewer colds, no pneumonia or bronchitis and will "feel the cold" far less keenly and unpleasantly; in fact, you'll enjoy it, except a few of the rawest and blusteriest days.

A more modern Winter dread which needs to be got rid of is the idea that because we live in steam or furnace heated houses we don't "stand the cold" as well as our former ancestors did. This is an utter mistake. On the contrary, warm, dry, well-ventilated houses increase our resisting power against the cold when we go outdoors.

Don't hesitate to start the furnace fire early in the Winter. It is much better to keep the floors and walls warm and dry and the windows open than to save fuel by stuffy and stifling little gas grates or oil stoves and sealing up the windows hermetically. Only a warm house will ever be well ventilated. Waste fuel, but save health.

Bathe or splash every morning in as cool or cold water as you can enjoy, get a good "glow" every day in the open air, sleep with your windows wide open at the top, eat heartily and you'll wonder when the real Winter is going to begin clear through till Spring.

On Keeping One's Temper

KEEP good natured and polite as you jog along the path,
Though sometimes you want to fight, don't give way to sudden wrath.
Keep your patience right on tap, be unruffled and serene,
Always let the other chap be the first to make a scene.
But, although you're calm at heart, always let him know, somehow,
That, if crowded, you can start
A great big row.

MEET your troubles with a grin, keep a steady, level head;
Be assured you cannot win if you walk 'round seeing red.
Do not swell your chest and bluff at the things that you will do,
If some self-complacent stuff tries to make it hot for you.
But if he insists on war, sail right in and smash his map,
Show him you are ready for
A first-class scrap!

ALL the highest prizes go to the men who suffer long,
Though their fortunes ebb or flow, though their luck goes right or wrong.
Do not let your temper rise, keep your passions under rein,
Pretty soon you'll realize that it's wiser to keep sane.
But sometimes you'll meet with men who hunt for trouble, as a fad.
So remember, now and then
You MUST get mad!

The Strange Psychology of Married Couples as to Pet Names

Dorothy Dix Tells of the Wives Who Pine Away if They Are Not Called "Sweetheart" Often Enough, and Also of the Couples Who in Their Fiercest Quarrels Still Call Each Other "Dearie"

By Dorothy Dix

MUST a man call his wife pet names even if he feels like beating her?

Is it the solemn and sacred duty of a husband to address the partner of his bosom as "my little ducky daddle," or "my precious tootsy wootsy," and if he fails to do so has the lady just cause for divorce?

This is an interesting domestic problem that is about to be solved by law, for the New York Supreme Court has been asked to decide whether it is cruelty for the husband to fail to address his wife in terms of endearment.

Sues to Divorce Husband Who Called Her "Dear" Only Once in Two Years

The point in question has arisen in the case of a woman who is suing her husband for divorce on the ground of cruel and inhuman treatment, which has broken her heart and wrecked her life, the said cruel and inhuman treatment consisting principally in the fact that he never used any terms of endearment to her, and only called her "dear" once in two years. And that was before people.

To the outsider this seems a trifling reason for breaking the holy bonds of wedlock. It makes a sensitive person wonder why a woman should wish to be called pet names by a husband who does not desire to pet her, since spontaneity is the soul of such matters.

Cold love talk is the clammiest thing in the world, and for a husband to still call his wife "kittens" after he has come to look upon her as an old cat whose claws he is afraid of, is not only a travesty on affection, but an insult as well.

Also in this particular case one has a certain admiration for the honest husband who refused to be hypocritical enough to call his wife "dear" when he was thinking something else about her that began with a big, big D.

Ever Hear a Married Couple in a Bitter Quarrel Still Use Pet Names?

Indeed, so far from upholding the wife who has gone to law to compel her husband either to pay alimony or else address her in love terms, the general public would like to get out an injunction restraining the married couples who continue the habit of calling each other pet names when they are scratching each other's eyes out.

Who has not listened with sardonic amusement to a quarrel between husband and wife in which the husband would say, "My precious darling love, if you were not the laziest, most trifling, extravagant, wasteful of a woman on earth, you would never run up a grocery bill like that," and the wife would reply, "Sweetheart, if you were not a bully and a brute and a close-fisted miser, you'd never say a thing like that to me."

Or, perhaps, the husband says, "Angel face, that hat makes you look about a million years old in the shade. I would think at your age you'd have enough sense to get things that suited a fat, old woman, instead of trying to dress like a debutante," or the wife says, "Idol of my soul, don't tell me you haven't been drinking. I can smell your breath. You can't fool me—you've been wasting the money that I need for parlor curtains on a lot of your bum friends," and so on ad infinitum.

Such ludicrous scenes where, in family fights, terms of deathless endearment and body blows rain thick and fast are so common that they have not only taken the gilt off of the gingerbread that married couples have handed to each other, but they have made us suspicious of it.

Experience has shown us that, as a general thing, the married couple that spoon the most in public, scrap the most in private, and that the husbands and wives who are "darlings," and "dearies," and "sweeties" in company are generally called by a shorter and uglier name at home.

Real love, real tenderness, the affection that endures is like good wine. It needs no brand to advertise it.

But there's one pathetic aspect to the case of the wife who considers that her husband has inflicted cruel and inhuman treatment upon her by not calling her "dear." It illustrates once again the strange warp in the feminine psychology that makes women put more stress on words than they do on deeds.

Women Appreciate Man's Deeds, but They Value His Words Almost as Much

This causes them to be the eternal prey of villains, and the despair of good men, for it makes them elope with gilb-tongued Lotharios, and scorn the honest wooers who offer them a dumb devotion.

As long as a man will make love to a woman she will adore him, no matter how he treats her. As long as a husband will call his wife pet names, and tell her that she is the most beautiful and wonderful creature on earth, she will take boarders to support him, and work her fingers to the bone while he loafs, and still consider that she drew the capital prize in matrimony.

But a man may worship every hair in his wife's head. He may be as faithful as Jacob, as domestic as a house cat; he may work himself to death to indulge her every whim and caprice, and yet if he doesn't pay her compliments, and tell her every morning in round, set terms that he adores her, and if he doesn't call her some fool love name, she will doubt his affection, and envy her sister who married the hot-air artist.

And considering that this is woman's unalterable viewpoint, perhaps it is cruel and inhuman treatment for a man not to use endearments in addressing his wife. At any rate it facilitates the running of the domestic machinery to lubricate it with plenty of soft soap. If it pleases a wife to be called "lovey dovey" instead of Mary Ann, it's a mean-spirited husband who doesn't gratify the precious little pet.

In-Shoots

Of course, high trolley car steps add to the attractiveness of the modern short skirt.

The noisy argument is least effective.

Of course it is always the thick-skulled who like to butt in.

When the henpecked man finally awakens to the situation he is too old to do much kicking in his own favor.

There is no limit to the affection that may be bestowed on the man who begins it: "Did I ever tell this story before?"
